

WORKS PLANS FOR PROVINCES DRAFTED

New U.S. Tax Is Second Blow For Island Industry

Government Assistance Is Sought in Meeting Shut-out Caused By Duty Against Pilchard Oil; Great Proportion of Output Formerly Sold to the United States.

Two factors which threaten the foundation of Vancouver Island's $2,000,000 a year pilchard industry were under governmental consideration to-day.

The most vital question was a 3c a pound duty placed by the United States against pilchard oil entering that country. This, it is feared, will have the effect of completely shutting out B.C. oil from that market which so far has taken the greater portion of the production.

The second point is to find the answer to the question: Will the pilchards come this year? On Tuesday the hydrographic survey boat, William J. Stewart, will leave for the West Coast and will pay particular attention to the quantity of the small vegetable matter on which pilchards feed that can be found on the coast. Last year the industry suffered a serious blow because the pilchards passed the coast fifty miles out to sea and the catch was negligible.

TO MEET MINISTER

Pilchard operators will confer on Tuesday with Hon. George S. Pearson, Commissioner of Fisheries, and G. J. Alexander, deputy commissioner, with respect to the new United States duty, which they say amounts to practically 200 per cent on the value of the oil. They will discuss whether new markets can be found for the product or some form of treatment given the oil which will make it saleable in another form, possibly by a refinery which would make it usable for paint manufacture.

There are several million dollars invested in the industry on the West Coast of the island, and after the disastrous fishing season of last year the new duty is a real body blow.

Approximately half the entire output of the plant is affected by the duty, the men claim, as oil and meal are about equal in the production value. The duty amounts to 21c a gallon on the oil, which sells at 11c.

U.S. TAKES LARGEST PART

How widely it hits the industry can be gauged from the fact that out of a production of from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 gallons in the good years, the United States takes close to 2,000,000 gallons.

More than 1,000 fishermen and employees will be thrown out of work if the plants do not operate and this is the angle on which the government is vitally concerned in laying out its programme to relieve unemployment. The men could probably not be absorbed elsewhere at the present time, it is thought.

The anxiety about the pilchards coming this year is only of a secondary nature because the failure of the fish to appear last year was considered a freak of nature. Old-timers on the coast said it was the first time within their experience this had happened. The operators are, however, watching closely for the usual signs and the assistance of the hydrographic survey boat has been enlisted.

LONG PATROLS BY R.C.M.P. MEN

Fort Ware, N.W.T., April 14.—Royal Canadian Mounted Police of this northern outpost completed over 3,000 miles of dog patrol during the winter, according to their report just completed. Their journeys included trips to Resolution and the Barren Lands.

RELIEF BILL NOW UP FOR THIRD READING

Commons, Having Completed Committee Stage on Government Measure, Will Stage Final Division Early Next Week

Ottawa, April 14.—After nearly two weeks of discussion the government's 1934 unemployment relief bill stands for third and final reading in the House of Commons. At times bitter, the debate has covered a wide field. The opposition has waged strenuous verbal warfare against the "peace, order and good government" and "blank cheque" clauses of the bill, and there is expected to be a full-scale diversion on third reading.

Just before the House adjourned last night the bill received the approval of the committee of the whole. It will likely come up for third reading Monday. Several Liberal amendments designed to curtail the larger power given the government by the bill were defeated. The "peace, order" (Turn to Page 2, Col. 1)

Oil Strike in England

Renewed interest in British oil production is being taken in England as a result of debate on a government bill in the Commons, and boring is being expedited at Worthy, near Crawley, Sussex, where oil has been found. The picture above shows a general view of the field where further drilling is in progress.

B.C. Asks Ottawa For Decision On Finance Aid and Work Plans

PREPAID TAXES NEAR 1932 SUM

Amount Placed in City's Coffers in Advance Still Considerably Below 1933

Still lagging below the 1933 record level, prepaid taxes for 1934 were almost even with the corresponding figures for 1932, a survey of the city's books revealed to-day.

Up to yesterday, 1,500 people had paid $352,112 in advance levies against $400,391 for last year's first three months and one week and $354,704 for the same period of 1932.

Interest allowance for prepayment this year to date totaled $11,854, against $16,438 in 1932. Last year 634 more people had made advance payments than have done so far this year.

Murder Hunt On Wrong Trail

Bremerton Police Say Persons Pointed to By Woman Free of Suspicion

Associated Press
Bremerton, Wash., April 14.—Police to-day declared three persons, named by Mrs. Alice Collins, forty-two, as possibly having some information about the murder of four men and two women March 29 in the Frank Pledger home at Brilands Point, near here, have been found, and that investigation revealed they know nothing about the crime.

ITALY BACHELORS' INCOME TAX SOARS

Rome, April 14.—Bachelorhood may be all right for bachelors, but it does not suit the Italian Government.

The cabinet to-day doubled the income tax on bachelors, thereby forcing every unmarried man in Italy to pay 50 per cent of his income into the national treasury.

SUGGESTS FLAT INTEREST RATE

Prince Rupert Commissioner Recommends 4% Be Paid on Outstanding Debentures

Canadian Press
Prince Rupert, B.C., April 14.—City Commissioner W. J. Alder to-day suggested in his annual financial report that holders of $1,845,518 outstanding city debentures agree to a flat rate of four per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, the city to undertake to raise the sum of $100,000 per annum out of which the interest would be paid and the balance used for redemption of debentures.

The debentures were issued at varying rates of interest from 5 to 7 per cent. Mr. Alder would have them redeemed in the order in which the original bonds fall due.

"Any attempt for some years to raise a greater sum than $100,000 per annum for debt purposes will, I am satisfied, result in further depreciation and greater reversions of property to the city and eventually jeopardize the security of the principal of outstanding debentures," Mr. Alder stated in the report.

He reported a collection of $156,226 on 1933 taxes, or 68 per cent of the levy; total arrears of general and local improvement taxes amounting to $452,024. Although all due and past due interest to debenture holders had been met during the year, there had been no fund available for the payment of matured debentures amounting to $138,700 and the sinking fund was short $30,487.

U.S. Stage Troupe Must Leave Japan

Associated Press
Tokyo, April 14.—Deaf to the pleas of high government officials, police adhered to-day to their decision that a bevy of United States stage beauties who have kept Tokyo goggle-eyed for weeks, must leave Japan.

The company of seventy-five entertainers, forty-five of them pretty dancers, was ordered to depart on the first available steamer after the end of the Tokyo booking to-morrow.

CHOSEN AS JUDGE

Ottawa, April 14 (Canadian Press).—A Chase Casgrain, K.C. Montreal, has been selected to fill the Quebec superior court vacancy created by the recent death of Mr. Justice G. Desautels. It was understood here to-day.

BOY IS SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Frank Millen, Committed at Powell River, Taken to Vancouver

Canadian Press
Vancouver, April 14.—Fourteen-year-old Frank Millen, ordered to stand trial on a charge of murdering his school chum, John McFarlane, ten, arrived here under police escort to-day from Powell River, B.C. He will be confined to the Boys' Detention Home here until his case is heard by the "next court of competent jurisdiction."

Millen was ordered to stand trial yesterday by Magistrate W. L. Parkin (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

WOULD NAME NO GOVERNOR

Alberta Legislature Votes Present Be Last Official in That Post in Province

Edmonton, April 14.—With party lines broken throughout the House, the Alberta Legislature yesterday evening voted to request the Dominion Government to make no further appointment to the post of Lieutenant-Governor of W. L. Walsh is completed, and to express the advisability of using Government House and its grounds for a tubercular sanatorium.

POLICE CLOSE IN ON OUTLAW

Associated Press
Shreveport, La., April 14.—Officers to-day believed they had surrounded Clyde Barrow, Texas bandit and killer, in his hideaway near Ringgold, La., about thirty miles southeast of Shreveport.

Shreveport policemen and deputy sheriffs, reinforced by Texas Rangers, hurried to the section late yesterday after receiving word Barrow was believed "trapped."

SENT TO POST IN NEW YORK

From Bristol, Eng., where he has been stationed as Canadian trade commissioner, Douglas S. Cole, above, is about to move to New York, having been appointed to the trade commissionship of that important point.

POWER RATES INQUIRY IN U.S.

Washington, April 14.—President Roosevelt to-day signed the Norris-Rankin resolution directing a federal power commission investigation of United States electric rates.

SASKATCHEWAN ELECTION

Moose Jaw, Sask., April 14 (Canadian Press).—The Saskatchewan general election will be held in the month of June, according to Herman Warren, M.P. for Bengough.

Gales On Coast Of Nova Scotia Cause Fishermen Losses

Fog Blankets Shoreline After Heavy Storms and Downpour of Rain; C.P.R. Liners Continue Voyages After Delay

Canadian Press
Halifax, April 14.—Heavy fog blanketed the coastline to-day, replacing the heavy gales and torrential downpour of yesterday evening. A storm-tossed sea whipped to a fury by a strong easterly wind still lapped at the shores, while fishermen estimated their losses at thousands of dollars.

The Canadian Pacific liners Duchess of Richmond and Montclair, held on the sea side of McNab's Island for shelter and prevented from docking at the sea wall for several hours, were able to take their berths early to-day. The Duchess of Richmond landed 400 passengers from Liverpool. The Montclair was scheduled to sail for Great Britain to-day.

WIFE MAY JOIN SAMUEL INSULL

Mrs. Insull May Voyage to U.S. With Man Extradited From Turkey

Ss. Exilona, bound for the United States from Smyrna, Turkey, April 14.—Samuel Insull, homeward bound in the custody of a United States official, was cheered to-day by the possibility he may be joined for most of the long journey by his wife.

The Exilona is holding cabin accommodation open to Mrs. Insull may embark at Catania, Sicily, if she can make arrangements. She is now in Athens.

The Exilona is expected to reach Catania, April 16.

Insull, on his way back to Chicago despite all his efforts to prevent it, was shown every courtesy, despite the fact he is a prisoner. He was assigned to the captain's table to-day.

Newspapermen, who finished a good second when they raised the Insull launch out to the Exilona at Smyrna, quickly turned the dining-room of the ship into a newsroom. Type-writers popped up on the tables. Papers were scattered helter-skelter. There the news of the world's most famous fugitive is being typed.

CRISIS RUMORS HEARD IN SPAIN

Associated Press
Madrid, April 14.—Reports a cabinet crisis impends marred Spain's celebration to-day of the third anniversary of the republic.

The national holiday was clouded also by fears of country-wide jail riots by political prisoners.

The prisoners, thousands of them in all parts of Spain, held since the abortive revolt of last December, threatened to riot in protest against the failure of the government to grant them amnesty on the anniversary.

Minister of Peace Alvarez Valdes was reported planning to present his resignation next Tuesday because of recent criticism. Premier Alejandro Lerroux struggled to forestall a rift.

Federal Building Schemes Will Be On Population Basis, Say Ottawa Reports

LOCOMOTIVE WILL BE BRITAIN'S LARGEST

Doncaster, Eng., April 14.—A new "hush-hush" locomotive, believed to be the largest in the United Kingdom, is nearing completion at the London and North-eastern Railway's shops here, it has been learned.

The engine will have eight coupled driving wheels, each six feet, eight inches in diameter. It is understood it will be used on the London-Scotland run.

The locomotive was designed by Herbert Nigel Gresley, chief mechanical engineer of the company.

Quebec Floods Prove Serious

Damage Estimated at $100,000 Caused When Many Places Flooded

Montreal, April 14.—Floods in the province of Quebec to-day assumed serious proportions. Solid masses of ice in the St. Lawrence flooded a section of Montmagny thirty-five miles below Quebec, while roads and cellars in the Montreal district were inundated.

At Montmagny over fifty business houses and homes were flooded in addition to a number of farms on the north bank of the south river. Nine feet of water was reported in the cellar of the city jail.

Streets in Stadacona Ward, Quebec City, were flooded. Two feet of water covered the main street of Ste. Therese, near Montreal. Many cellars were flooded. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

Storm Strikes Mexican Coast

Associated Press
Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 14.—A terrific hurricane struck the coast south of here yesterday evening.

First reports, perhaps due to the wreckage of communication facilities, listed no casualties, but preliminary estimates said at least $140,000 worth of property was destroyed.

The village of Jolapandua was practically wiped out. In the Chilpancingo region trees were blown down, roofs were lifted from houses, telephones and telegraph lines were destroyed and roads were wrecked.

English First Division Football Leaders Whip Liverpool 3 to 2

Canadian Press
London, April 14.—The Arsenal got another step nearer the championship of the English Football League to-day when the Gunners defeated Liverpool 3 to 2, although without the services of three of their best men taken for the international match.

The Gunners needed the victory because Huddersfield Town, only four points behind in the first division championship race, were garnering points at the expense of Newcastle United, beaten 4 to 1.

Chelsea trounced Everton 2 to 0, while Birmingham beat Aston Villa 1 to 1. As a result, Birmingham are now next to Sheffield United on the relegation list, Chelsea being a point above the former.

Grimsby Town, sure of getting up into the first division next season, beat Fulham 3 to 1 at home. The deadlock between Bolton and Brentford for the honor of accompanying the Fishermen in promotion, however, (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

England Captures Football Classic

Defeats Scotland 3 to 0 in International Match Played at Wembley Stadium Before 92,000; Bastin, Brook and Bowers Are Scorers

Canadian Press
Wembley Stadium, London, April 14.—England defeated Scotland 3 to 0 in their international soccer classic this afternoon before a crowd of 92,000 persons.

Bastin of the Arsenal scored in the first half and Brook of Manchester City and Bowers of Derby County made it sure for England near the close of the match.

It was the fifty-eighth meeting between the rivals, and brought the record to eighteen wins for England, twenty-six for Scotland and fourteen draws.

Scotland won the toss and elected to play with the wind behind them. Gallagher got an opening after a mistake by Hart, but his wing pass was too strong.

Bastin engineered a fine attack with a swinging pass to the other side of the line, but Crooks was knocked off the ball. From a clearance by McGonagle, Gallagher worked out to the right and went down the field to test Moss with a lovely cross drive.

SCOTTISH PRESS

NEW RULE FOR MOVIES URGED

Saint John, April 14.—A resolution asking the New Brunswick government to make it obligatory for all motion picture advertisements to state if the picture is suitable for children showing or for adults only, was passed unanimously by the New Brunswick provincial chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at its thirty-fourth annual meeting.

MANY ARRESTS IN AUSTRIA

Vienna, April 14.—Train wreckers who derailed the Vienna-Paris-London express Tuesday were trying to kill Emil Fey, Vice-Chancellor of Austria, it was learned to-day.

Fey was travelling to Salzburg in the saloon coach of the train when the locomotive, mail car and baggage car plunged into a ditch between Wels and Linz.

The sleepers and other passenger coaches remained upright.

The fireman and a postal employee were killed, and a score of others injured.

Authorities announced the left radical group was suspected of carrying out the wrecking plot. Police indicated they expected numerous arrests soon.

It was recalled to-day that an attempt was made in February to wreck a train on which Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was returning to Vienna from Budapest.

Programme Which Soon Will Be Laid Before Parliament Includes Public Buildings in All Parts of Country as Suggested By Number of Organizations

Biggest Share To Largest Cities

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 14.—The works programme which the government will introduce in the House of Commons shortly vied to-day with speculation as to the provisions of the budget which will be brought down next week in discussions in the corridors of Parliament.

The Prime Minister stated yesterday the works programme to relieve unemployment would be based on suggestions submitted to the government by various Canadian organizations. The suggestions have frequently been referred to as calling for a total expenditure in the neighborhood of $50,000,000.

The organizations which submitted the suggestions include the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Engineering Institute of Canada, the Canadian Construction Association and the Trades and Labor Congress.

NUMEROUS BUILDINGS
The programme suggested would take the form of construction of public buildings in all parts of Canada, and would, it was thought, stimulate the building industry, giving employment to carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers and allied tradesmen.

Construction of highways was not specifically mentioned in the brief submitted by the various organizations, and actual details have never been published.

Police Seek Three Missing Persons

Eighteen-year-old Girl Is Added to List of Those Disappeared From Homes

City and outside police to-day were seeking information concerning the whereabouts of three persons who have been reported missing from their homes for several days and whose parents and relatives are anxiously awaiting word from them.

The three listed as missing are: Doris Morrison, eighteen, 1316 Haultain Road, J. E. Brown, Atkins Road, Langford.

Mrs. H. B. Nicolle, 648 Belton Avenue.

Miss Morrison is the most recent to disappear. She left home on Tuesday evening and has not been seen since. She is described as being five feet seven inches tall, slender, and wearing a brown velvet coat, a red dress and brown and white shoes.

Mrs. Nicolle was last seen on Thursday.

The discovery of a handbag yesterday on Selkirk Avenue led to development of the theory she may have been taken with a sudden attack while near the Gorge and have fallen (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3) larger cities to be given the greater share. The programme to be laid before Parliament is expected to give work to hundreds of thousands of men.

Regional councils of the organizations in eighteen centres submitted lists of undertakings, which were carefully examined by experts from the various industries. Finally, they in turn prepared a definite list for submission to the government, and it is on this list the programme will be based.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Telling the Commons yesterday afternoon the public works programme in connection with relief of unemployment would be "along the line of suggestions that were made by the Construction Association and other industrial groups throughout the country during the last few months," Premier Bennett later stated "the government proposes to introduce a bill dealing with public works." A schedule would be attached to it indicating what the proposed works were. He did not hold out any hope there would be large appropriations covering small items.

and good government" clause authorizes the government to pass orders-in-council on any matter "in addition to the provision of any statute." The "blank cheque" clause authorizes it to spend any sum it deems proper on relief.

POSITION OF PROGRESSIVES

Seven Progressive members voiced with the government on an amendment to alter slightly the "peace, order and good government" clause, drawing from Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Liberal, Vancouver Centre, the statement they were evidently prepared to accept anything the Prime Minister asked them to.

Angus MacIsaac, Labor, Vancouver South, said Mr. Mackenzie apparently thought a thing was good if done by a Liberal government, but wrong if done by a Conservative government, since he had raised no objection to the wide powers assumed by the Liberal government of British Columbia under the Special Powers Act.

BILLS FILE UP

For thirteen days the Dominion Treasury has been without authority to pay accumulated relief bills from the provinces and municipalities, last year's act having expired March 31. The present bill will take its place, but until it passed the House and Senate in final form, the bills will continue to pile up.

The "blank cheque" feature of a bill was never so essential as today, said Premier Bennett during a defence of the bill. He pictured a general scramble among the provinces for a share of the appropriation if a definite limit were placed, causing a situation where "the test shall not be necessity but the ability to get."

"No one," said the Prime Minister, while his voice dropped almost to a whisper, "no one has suggested in four years there has been on the part of this government any abuse of authority or usurpation of power or to the effect of anything else but to use the powers in the interests of the country as a whole."

Slowly and quietly, the Prime Minister said there were "great experiments in the world" that were bound to have effect on Canada, and he wished to be prepared, to be clothed with power to act promptly in the interests of Canada.

CONFERENCE SUGGESTED

Once, when A. W. Neil, Independent member for Comox-Alberni, suggested a conference between the Prime Minister and the Liberal and Conservative leaders for some plain talking on internal and external conditions affecting the country, the Prime Minister said he doubted if it would result in any good. "However," he added, "if a crisis develops, I certainly will."

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Liberal, Vancouver Centre, declared the clause of the bill which reads "the Governor-in-Council may pay out of the consolidated revenue fund such moneys as may be necessary for all or any of the purposes of this act," was unconstitutional.

He moved an amendment to limit government relief expenditures to moneys voted by parliament, with a stipulated limit.

England Captures Football Classic

The goalmouth and Crooks gave a good centre to Bowers. Jackson saved brilliantly.

The English pressed around the Scottish goal for some time, but Jackson cleared, tipping a left-footed shot from Bastin just over the bar. Gallacher then found Hart easy to elude and with Connor he led the English defence a merry dance.

The English halves improved and Scotland was stopped. Crooks got a clear passage to the goal, but McGonagle brought him down with what looked like an unfair tackle.

ENGLAND SCORES

England finally scored in the fortieth minute. Bastin and Brook wangled through the opposition with some tricky passing all down the field and finally Brook pushed the ball over to Bastin in front of the net, the latter's shot beating Jackson all the way.

Half time came with no further score.

Scotland rallied spiritedly on the resumption and Stevenson twice headed in towards the net. Moss then saved a certain goal when Gallacher got in a high kick. England had a hectic time before the Scots were driven back again.

The Scots were decidedly on top of the play, but they could not score. The English defence covered up splendidly. Stevenson and Gallacher worked like supermen for the equalizer and their duels with Haggood and the crowd in an uproar.

BRILLIANT

Connor hit the side of the net and then Gallacher sent a hot drive that Moss handled nicely. But for Moss's work Scotland should have scored more than once.

Then it was vied his way through and was fouled a yard outside the penalty area. Brook scored on a lucky shot, the ball cannoning into the net off the post.

England scored a third right after Jon Bowers headed in a good pass from Brook.

There was no further scoring and the match ended 3 to 0 for England, but the score was no indication of the play, the Scottish deserving at least a draw.

The teams follow:

Scotland—Jackson (Chelsea), goal; Anderson (Hearts) and McDonnell (Celtic) backs; MacIsaac (Hearts), Smith (Kilmarnock) and Miller (St. Mirren), halfbacks; Cook (Bolton), Marshall (Rangers), Gallacher (Chelsea), Stevenson (Motherwell) and Connor (Sunderland), forwards.

England—Moss (Arsenal), Cooper (Derby County) and Haggood (Arsenal) backs; Stocker (Birmingham), Hart (Leeds United) and Copping (Leeds United), halfbacks; Crooks (Derby County), Carter (Sunderland), Bowers (Derby), Bastin (Arsenal) and Brook (Manchester City), forwards.

KING FALLS AT TENNIS

Paris, April 14 (Associated Press).—King Gustaf of Sweden slipped and fell during his daily tennis match yesterday, bruising his knee and cutting his lip. But the royal sportsman refused to quit the doubles match and resumed play after a few minutes' rest, winning the set with his partner.

remained after both halves were their home engagements.

Manchester United continued to make a fight to escape relegation to the third division along with the luckless Lincoln City. The United beat Port Vale 2 to 0 to-day while Millwall were losing at Burnley, and as a result Manchester is only a point below Millwall and Swansea Town.

Norwich City, third division southern leaders, took a loss at Reading but still have a substantial advantage. In the northern section, however, Barnsley got to within a point of Chesterfield.

Glasgow, April 14.—Scottish Football League engagements were curtailed to-day on account of the international match at Wembley, none of the leaders of the first division being engaged. Aberdeen, however, drew clear into third position, getting a tie with St. Mirren, cup finalists, in a scoreless game while Queen of South were tied.

Aldershot continued a gallant battle to avoid relegation along with the tail-end Cowdenbeath club, beating Heston 2 to 2. Third Lanark lost to Partick Thistle and are only a point above Aldershot.

Dunfermline, second division leaders, won at Morton 2 to 0 and extending their margin to two points. Stenhousemuir and Arbroath remained deadlocked for second place which also carries promotion. Arbroath was tied by King's Park while Stenhousemuir beat Raith Rovers 5 to 4.

Belfast, April 14.—Linfield had a runaway victory over Cliftonville in the final for the Irish Football Association Cup to-day, winning by 5 to 0.

Linfield, also Irish League champions this season, recorded their seventeenth victory in the cup, first completed for in 1880-81. Their last victorious cup final was in 1931. Since then Glenavon has held it.

Belfast city soccer cup matches resulted as follows:

B.C. Asks Ottawa For Decision on Finance Aid and Work Plans

In the next year. Because the Dominion Government controls currency and credit and the provincial powers over financing extend only to the collecting and spending of taxation the appeal to Ottawa has become necessary. The amount of assistance which British Columbia asks undoubtedly will be based to a large extent upon three factors: The budget with its $2,000,000 current deficit; requirements for relief or public works, and financial aid for municipalities which are hard-pressed.

B.N.A. ACT

Probably this province will be asked for its views on changes to the British North America Act as proposed by Premier Bennett. There is a large amount of social legislation such as old-age pensions, widows' allowances, health insurance, unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation which requires co-ordination under one heading. It is claimed, and rearrangement of the powers under the B.N.A. Act is essential to clarify this situation. Since these matters have a great deal to do with the present financial condition of both the province and Dominion, it may be taken for granted they will be discussed.

SLIDING ARRANGEMENT

4. The price will be maintained by fluctuating fixed prices for the wheat of respective exporters. If, for instance, Canada in a certain period sends more wheat than would be normal under her quota, the Canadian price will be increased with the idea of bringing the export quota into line with the sliding arrangement.

5. Aiding in establishment of the scheme the conference recommends chopping up the present yearly export quotas into shorter periods, three months being one suggestion. These figures are being prepared. Price-fixing is suggested on a basis of monthly export.

6. Also backing up the scheme governments will be asked to refrain from barter dealings or other governmental transactions that would hurt the minimum price system. Flour prices will be fixed at definite percentages to corresponding wheat grades. Wheat products, such as semolina, will be restricted along with wheat.

TO-BALANCE PRICES

7. Wheat exporting governments further will be asked to make sure their internal prices are at least as high as the minimum export price. This is an essential safeguard against export of flour at lower than minimum wheat figures. Withdrawal of quantities by denaturing is one method.

8. It is suggested the expert committee meet in London, May 4, along with the wheat conference heads to work out final details in order the scheme may go into effect about June 1.

MURDER HUNT ON WRONG TRAIL

The three were Jack Everhard, a negro; George Decludet and his wife, Mrs. Decludet.

The authorities said Mrs. Collins had been malicious in her story that Everhard had pulled two stained pairs of stockings and a hairbrush from his pocket remarking, after she had commented on the slayings, "Here's something to remember the by."

After Mrs. Collins had told her story, officers advised her she would be jailed while it was checked. She then denied the story and insisted she had stolen the stockings and hairbrush from the Flieder home Monday when she was taken to the place by a deputy sheriff.

Mrs. Collins was still in jail at Port Orchard, the county seat, yesterday, while officers decided what charges, if any, to file against her. Those murdered beside the Flieder were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Chenoweth, Fred Bolcom and Magnus Jordan.

into the water. Pursuing this suggestion, police yesterday carried on dragging operations without success. These were continued by Mr. Bowden, a possibility Mrs. Nicole did not fall in the water, and although there are some indications in this direction, there is hope that she may be safe.

GONE NINE DAYS

Mr. Bowden's disappearance has aroused considerable concern among his Langford friends. He left his home a week ago Thursday and has not been seen since 4:15 a.m. that day, when he filled his motorcycle tank with gasoline at a station near Langford and headed upland.

The motorcycle and side car were found this week cached in the bushes on the Shawinigan Lake cut-off.

Mr. Bowden took guns, fishing tackle and blankets with him, no trace of which were found with the motorcycle. Chief concern is aroused over the fact that he was shell-shocked during the war and is totally deaf. While he has been known to take hunting and fishing trips up-

POWELL RIVER PROCEEDINGS

Powell River, B.C., April 14.—Frank Millen, fourteen, who police state, confessed to the slaying of his ten-year-old school chum, John McFarlane, last week, was ordered to stand trial on a charge of murder at the "trial court of experts" jurisdiction" by Magistrate W. L. Parkin here yesterday.

Fifteen witnesses, most of whom gave evidence at the coroner's inquest Wednesday, testified yesterday.

Millen was not represented by counsel, but his father and mother were in court. Asked by the magistrate if he had anything to say, the boy said he had killed his chum because of a quarrel over a dog. Millen stated he accidentally struck the McFarlane with an axe while the two were playing together near a sand pit.

J. W. Dafee Says Extreme

Makes Union Stronger Here

Canadian Press
New York, April 14.—The long "tariff feud" between the United States and Canada, had reduced the wealth of North America by billions of dollars, John W. Dafee, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, declared in an address before the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University yesterday evening. Should nations persist in their present policy of "extreme nationalism and inevitable war," Mr. Dafee predicted a closer union of the two North American countries would develop. He asserted, however, that Canada and the United States, acting in a spirit of greater friendliness toward each other, would make an immediate contribution of "incalculable worth" toward dispelling nationalistic tendencies and advancing world peace.

Case, M.P.'s Are Told

Canadian Press
Ottawa, April 14.—The now famous suit of the government against Archie Gignac, young Windsor, Ont., lawyer, was aired before the radio committee of the House of Commons yesterday by Commander C. P. Edwards, director of the radio-telegraph branch of the Department of Marine. Revenue from radio licenses had declined about $100,000 last year, Commander Edwards said, with Mr. Gignac's refusal to pay his license fee of $2 being directly responsible.

Mr. Gignac was prosecuted, but the prosecution was dismissed. The case was appealed, and ultimately the verdict of the first trial was reversed. Now Mr. Gignac has appealed again and the case was to come up shortly. Commander Edwards was asked in connection with this case, it would have been better to license the individual or the set itself.

Agents and leaders go there to hire extra flutes, saxophones and such.

WAGE RISES

Government Employees Now Buying Because of Increase in Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington, April 14.—All of a sudden this capital has become prosperous and full of good cheer.

Spring has brought the largest crop of visitors since the depression began. That many be due to better times over the country, a greater interest in Washington, or both. Anyway, the influx is fine for business and its nice to see all the pretty little high school girls barging around in their new duds.

But that wasn't all spring brought. It also produced a boost in the income of the 90,000 federal employees here, thanks to a sudden revaluation of Congress which overrode a Roosevelt veto.

Last year federal salaries were cut 15 per cent. Now the government workers receive 5 per cent restoration at once, retroactive to February 1, and 5 per cent more effective in July.

The retroactive feature means a sudden windfall of more than $2,000,000 to the boys and girls as soon as the government accountants get it figured out.

Thousands of new suits and new dresses have been bought. Almost everyone promptly figured on buying that thing he had "had to go without."

Easter business in the stores surpassed Christmas business. Electric refrigerator, radio and automobile sales fell off most sharply when the cut came. Now they're picking up again, rapidly.

(Have the landlords and landladies started to raise rents? You bet they have!)

CLASSES AT

Premier Bennett Says Young
Men's Efforts to Improve Education Encouraging

Ottawa, April 14.—The desire shown by young men at relief camps to improve their education was "most heartening," Premier Bennett stated in the House of Commons yesterday. In some camps the Frontier College was lending valuable aid, and in others the young men were forming circles and engaging in self education.

The point was raised by Wilfred Hanbury, Liberal, Vancouver-Burrard, who expressed concern as to the mental effect of this type of camp life on the young men, and suggested they be encouraged to study such subjects as geology in their spare time.

Canada was importing large quantities of oil, and gold was bringing a high price. It would be a good thing if these men in the camps conducted by the Department of National Defence were trained so they could take up the work of prospecting for oil, gold and other metals, Mr. Hanbury said.

Men had been assisted in washing for gold in the gold bearing streams of British Columbia and Alberta, Mr. Bennett explained. He had been greatly interested in a proposal to make it possible for unemployed men to explore for minerals, but had been forced to the decision it would be very expensive. However, he still had hopes something could be done in that direction.

The men in these camps were anxious to get an education in most cases, and the fact that 7,000 had been absorbed into industry out of the over 20,000 was very encouraging, said the Premier.

WOULD EASE
DEBT BURDEN

Saskatchewan Farmer-
Labor Group of C.C.F. Outlines Its Proposals

Canadian Press
Saskatoon, April 14.—Undertaking to "free the country of impossible interest and debt burdens," to build up a reserve against crop failure, and to prevent dispossession of farms and homes, the Farmer-Labor group, Saskatchewan unit of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, issued a declaration of policy to-day in connection with the Saskatchewan general election to be held sometime this summer.

"The . . . group pledges itself to prevent our dispossession by financial corporations and will definitely place interests of humanity before those of financial interests and bondholders," it states.

Saskatchewan's debt exceeded $140,000,000, hearing high interest, and the group would "demand from the federal government the right that banks now possess to deposit Saskatchewan bonds with the Department of Finance and receive the necessary currency in exchange." In event of refusal "we demand the right to institute our own token system to provide for our internal services, such as education, hospitalization and mothers' allowances." Provincial and municipal debts would be consolidated to save millions in interest.

COMMODITY EXCHANGE
"We must demand from the Dominion," it continued, "the right to exchange our commodities for things we need from outside. To secure this we must seek co-operation of neighboring provinces whose need is similar."

Saskatchewan's educational system would be unified under a non-political commission to ensure equal educational opportunities for all. The statement went on. A provincial unit of education to equalize costs, provide adequate facilities and promote efficiency, would be set up.

The "socialized health" scheme would provide health services free of individual financial liability, leaving patients free to choose a practitioner, wherever feasible, and "adequate remuneration for those rendering these essential services to society."

In conclusion the declaration stated the organization stood for religious freedom as an inherent right of society.

FIXED BUTTERFAT
PRICE IS URGED

Canadian Press
Edmonton, April 14.—Destructive war going on in the dairy industry of Canada must be stopped and the industry be brought under governmental control, declared Hon. George Ross, Minister of Agriculture, speaking before the agricultural committee of the Alberta Legislature yesterday.

"The creamery business is disorganized from one end of Canada to the other," the minister asserted, "and with butter selling in Montreal at 27 cents and in Edmonton at 25 cents, the price being paid for butterfat is absurdly low."

A price to be set for butterfat, which would govern the operations of all the creameries, was Mr. Ross's suggestion. In Alberta power to set such price rested, he said, with the public utilities board.

The whole industry, he stated, needed stabilizing.

ABOUT WINDOW BOXES

By JOHN HUTCHISON, F.R.H.S.

A window box may be just a few boards nailed together and given a coat of paint, or it may be an elaborate affair, made of terra cotta or cement, but whatever it is made of, its capacity for holding earth must be as great as possible. This is particularly true if the situation is a very sunny one, because the sun tends to dry the soil in a window box very quickly. In a window box the sun not only shines upon the surface soil, but as a rule, on three sides of the box itself.

Another important matter in respect to window boxes, is to see that they do not sit flat on the window sill or veranda rail, but that they are raised an inch or more on battens so as to insure good drainage and a free circulation of air. The soil should consist of good garden loam, some leaf mould, a little very old manure and a percentage of nice sharp sand.

ORIGINAL PLANTING
As a rule, very little originality is shown in the planting of window boxes. Geraniums, calceolarias and lobelia seem to be the plants most often seen in window boxes. Annuals are not used as much as they might be in this form of gardening. They are inexpensive, easy to grow and will give a great variety of color effects. True, they are short-lived, but if the flowers are cut when they begin to fade and the plants are not allowed to set seed they will keep in flower all summer long. In most cases, careful and regular watering, and in very hot weather a gentle spraying of the leaves with tepid water will do much to keep the plants healthy.

FLANTS FOR BOXES
Annual plants for use in window boxes should be raised to a fair size before planting. In no case should the seeds be sown direct in the window box, with perhaps the exception of such large seeds as nasturtiums. If one wants a very gay window box it may be filled with mixed double French marigolds, orange, yellow, striped and spotted, with a dwarf nasturtium with a yellow ground and scarlet blotches as an edging and with canary creeper as a draping for the front. The draping may be dispensed with if there is not room for such an appendage.

COLOR COMBINATIONS
A combination of flame-colored antirrhinums and a nasturtium, in shades of cream is very pretty, while a nice red and white scheme may be attained by planting the deep scarlet nasturtium, "King of Tom Thumb," backed with the tall white candy-tuft. Another good red and white combination is reached by the use of scarlet antirrhinums with a carpeting of "Little Don't" alyssum.

The little annual pink "Hedwig" is a splendid window box plant, whether used in separate colors or mixed. These may be combined with Gypsophila elegans and one of the paler blue lobelias. Tall, white China asters and the nasturtium Empress of India is another good red-and-white combination.

BOX ROCK GARDEN
A window box rock garden is perhaps a novelty, but at the same time exceedingly practical and has the advantage of being slightly off the year round, even in winter. A dwarf conifer or two, half a dozen saxifrages, or the crumpled section as many sedums, and a few sempervivums make a good basis. Then add to these some of the dwarf campanulas, a few suberectas of good color, a sun rose or two and some dwarf phlox—and presto—you have a window box that is not only different but will give a good account of itself in the life of many a flower lover, and let it be remembered many good effects may be invented and thought out so that there is plenty of scope for originality in window boxes.

Where a garden is not possible such as when one is living in a flat, or apartment, the window box will fill a want in the life of many a flower lover, and let it be remembered many good effects may be invented and thought out so that there is plenty of scope for originality in window boxes.

There are hundreds of plants and combinations of plants that have never been tried in window boxes. Therefore, why not try some new and original scheme that is all your own?

STILL PLANTING

There is still time to plant things out of our huge collections. For this season we grow shrubs, trees, perennials and rock plants in special boxes and pots, from which they can be transplanted at any time, even in the middle of the summer. The prices, of course, are lower than ever, and the quality, as usual, the highest. Order at our nurseries, or at our stall in the Public Market. And if you need a gardener for any purpose whatever, at reasonable cost, just phone us.

Come for Day and Are Carried Away by Place

Clyde K. Folsom, retired New York banker, with twenty-five years' experience on Wall Street, is so captivated by Victoria that he is inclined to extend his stay indefinitely.

Mr. Folsom, who owns a mountain estate at Rumford, Maine, spent the winter with his daughter, Mary, in northern California. They struck Victoria in its most pleasant mood and are now sold on the city.

"We know southern California pretty well, having spent a number of winters down there, but we had heard about Victoria and decided to come here on our way back to New York," said Mr. Folsom at the Empress Hotel to-day. "I must say we are carried away by the place. It is one of the most delightful places I have ever seen. The climate is just what we need. I came for a day or two, just to look around, but now I am tempted to stay. Don't have any doubt about it. We are going to Victoria a big boost when we get back home."

Following their arrival in the city yesterday from the south, Mr. Folsom and his daughter have been visiting golf at the Victoria Golf club.

"They were so won over by the city course and the wonderful untainted vista across the glistering straits, that they decided to go again tomorrow afternoon. We may stay here some time yet," commented Mr. Folsom.

ARIBOO BULL SALE MAY 3

The third annual bull sale of the ariboo will be held at Williams Lake May 3 in conjunction with the annual meeting of range cattlemen of Chilcotin, Cariboo and Okanagan.

Dr. W. R. Gunn, veterinary pector, and J. A. Grant, markets commissioner, will attend.

Investment men of the district are looking toward improvement of beef on the range and in this connection Dr. Gunn will devote a week studying the range disease that has caused losses among the herds of Chilcotin and Hereford last year. The cattlemen also are deeply interested in the marketing problem. Mr. Grant is being sent to the meeting by Hon. K. C. Macdonald, minister of Agriculture, in an advisory capacity.

Judge Restores House To Widow

A few months ago a man applied at a local realty agency to rent a house. When he gave the required assurance that he was not on relief, the house was rented to him at $15 a month.

The owner, however, was not long in discovering after the man moved into the house that he was on relief after all, and the rent went unpaid.

Then recently the owner of the house died, leaving it as one of his few possessions to his wife and child. The widow, told the story to Judge Lampman. He said that if the widow was not able to gain possession and move into the house for which she was receiving no rent, she would be on city relief herself, with her child.

The judge ordered the non-paying tenant to vacate the widow's house by next Friday at the latest.

"Y" CIRCUS PLANS LAID

Committees Appointed for Various Phases of Big Event at Willows May 12

All the turns of the sawdust ring, and a good many not of it, will be presented to the public of Victoria in the Y.M.C.A.'s annual circus, to be held in the Willows horse show building on the evening of Saturday, May 12.

At a meeting of the committee in charge of the affair yesterday evening the broad outline of the programme was laid, and officers were appointed to take charge of the many phases of the circus organization.

Byron I. Johnson, M.P.P., was chosen chairman by a unanimous vote, and the post of vice-chairman was allotted to E. O. Rowbottom. Frank Chamberlain will be secretary.

In addition to these officers an executive was named, consisting of H. B. Witter, Dr. T. W. A. Gray, Samuel Hill, Noel Collinson, W. Martin, Norval Peterson, N. Collins, Leonard Oliver, S. J. D. Clark, R. Gordon, Walter Miles, J. A. Heritage, Vivian Shoemaker, Frank Paulding and Archie McKinnon.

Committees were appointed to deal with individual phases of the organization as follows: Finance, Mr. Witter (chairman); Dr. Gray and Mr. Paulding; programme, Mr. Martin (chairman); Mr. Collinson, Mr. Oliver and Mr. McKinnon; ticket, Mr. Hill (chairman); Mr. Gray and Mr. Paulding; property, Mr. Heritage (chairman); Mr. Martin, Mr. Collinson and J. V. Johnson; music, Mr. Clark (chairman); Mr. Shoemaker; refreshments, Nelson Allen (chairman); Mr. Shoemaker, publicity, Mr. Paulding (chairman) and Mr. McKinnon, and programme advertising, Mr. Peterson.

The annual "Y" circus has been held for several years and has always been a success. This year the promoters promise an even bigger and better show. All who are concerned in the arrangement of the performance are pledged to make it the greatest success yet.

Sooke

The "Bluff," the home of Col. and Mrs. Osborn, was the scene of a very enjoyable evening on Thursday, when a bridge and five hundred party were given under the auspices of the committee of Holy Trinity Church. Nine tables were in play and prizes were awarded as follows: Bridge, first prize, Mrs. Stow and W. H. Colman; consolation, Mrs. Hewlett and Miss Hines; five hundred, first prize, Mrs. Diver and R. Strel; consolation, Mrs. H. McBride and J. Nowry. Refreshments were served.

By Helen Wechsler

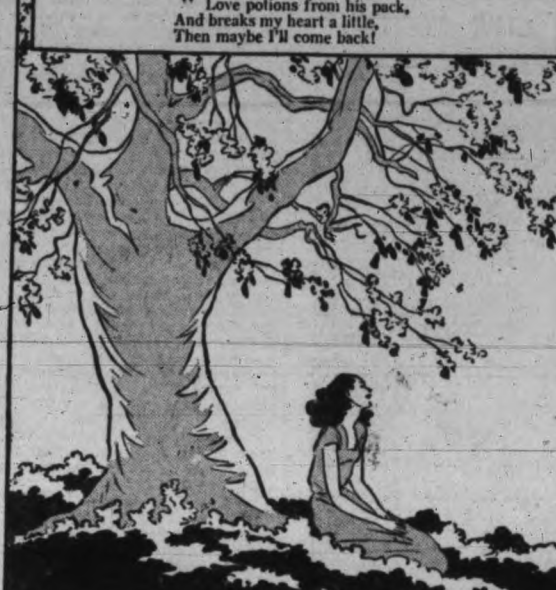

A COOL green wind is blowing,
A new moon is for sale,
(Oh, why did I spend money
For a tin scrub pail?)

THE pipes of Pan are mended,
They have been mule so long;
And April has new slippers,
As gay as any song.

I WASH the cups and saucers,
And I turn back the sheet,
And starlight dusts the windows...
Oh, April dreams are sweet!

AND springtime has enchantment,
And silver trails the brief,
So here's my gingham apron,
And if I come to grief

WITH some tall lad who gives me
Love potions from his pack,
And breaks my heart a little,
Then maybe I'll come back!

From "Camosack" To "Iswhomyalth"

It Means "From Victoria
To Esquimalt," Ninety Years Ago; Interesting
Relic for Provincial Archives

Esquimalt was spelt "Iswhomyalth" ninety years ago. This quaint spelling is shown on an original sketch map of Vancouver Island which has just found its way to the Provincial Archives, a presentation from the governor and committee of the Hudson's Bay Company in London.

The plan was drawn by Lee Lewis under the direction of Governor James Douglas. It also gives the name "Camosack" for Fort Victoria.

A number of other interesting materials for the archives has been received recently. John Hoek, Provincial Librarian, stated.

M. L. Bird of Vancouver has donated a large collection of books, maps, prints, charts and engravings dealing with the discovery of the northwest passage, with special reference to Sir John Franklin. Mr. Bird has been building up this collection for years, so that it contains many maps not alone in books, but in raps and other original data.

Another donation that is much valued is an album of large photographs of Vancouver Island and British Columbia scenes taken by F. Daily, one of the pioneer photographers of the province, who lived much between 1867 and 1868. This unique pictorial collection has been presented by Rev. H. Mandi-Rosby, Chelsea, London, who is a grandson of Mr. Justice Needham, formerly of the B.C. Judiciary.

Will Produce Coward Drama

Beaux Arts Choose "Private Lives" to Be Given at Shrine on April 30

For the Beaux-Arts' annual play this year, has been chosen Noel Coward's popular play "Private Lives," which will be directed by Major Bullock-Webster, and which will be shown at the Shrine Hall, Monday, April 30, in aid of the Sunshine Camp.

It will be remembered that last year's play "Berkley Square" was a great success, and it is firmly believed that "Private Lives" will be equally as good.

The story is of two young married women, Amanda and Sibyl, who unable to live happily with their husbands, Elyot and Victor, are divorced and remarry each other's husbands—Amanda to Victor, and Sibyl to Elyot. By one of those freaks of chance, so invaluable to good drama, they arrive for the first night of their honeymoon at the same French hotel, and are quartered in adjoining rooms. One can imagine the amusing complications that would arise under such circumstances. However, the end of the play finds Amanda and Elyot happily married again, and enjoying a violent quarrel between Sibyl and Victor.

BILLY SUNDAY'S GRANDSON TO WED

The matrimonial trail beckons to George M. Sunday Jr., grandson of Billy Sunday, noted evangelist of the sawdust trail. Young Sunday is shown here with his fiancée, Miss Dorothy Evelyn Barrick of San Francisco, as they talked over their plans in Los Angeles.

FLORAL AWARD RIVALRY KEEN

Four Districts Bid for Cup to Be Awarded at Spring
Flower Show

Competition for the City of Victoria Challenge Cup to be awarded at the Spring Flower Show at the Willows April 27 and 28, will this year be keener than ever.

This cup, which will go to the winning district display and is at present held by the Cowichan district, will be competed for this year by at least four districts.

The Alberni Horticultural Society which last year was prevented from entering by the lateness of the season has announced its determination to make a very strong bid for the cup this year, and reports its gardens are no less forward in this remarkably early season than those of Victoria.

An entirely new and very strong competitor this year will be the Metchoin district. Following on the very successful flower show held at Metchoin this week the Metchoin district Community Club has decided opportunity to realize that Metchoin produces flowers equal in quality and quantity to those produced anywhere on the island.

MOVE SALE OF ISLAND

Sale of Johnstone Island, a small island near Sidney, was recommended by the lands committee to the City Council at its meeting yesterday.

The committee moved the island be sold to Rose May Reid for $250, the highest bid received for it.

The committee also recommended the sale of a lot on the south side of Johnson Street, between Quadra and Vancouver Streets, to Harry Fletcher Young, for the sum of $700. It was Mr. Young's plan to remodel a building on the site for use as an apartment house.

The council also heard a request from A. E. Alexander, proprietor of Foster's Fine Furs, for the purchase of four or five acres near Thetis Lake for a silver fox farm.

A Paris telephone exchange has an automatic machine which gives out the exact time, correct to the annual last fraction of a second; in clear, human tones.

WOULD CHANGE WELFARE ROOMS

A change in the present site of the Saanich Welfare Association headquarters in the Tillicum School, where it was maintained, children's health is now imperilled, was advocated by supporters of a resolution passed at a meeting of the Ward Seven Ratepayers' Association yesterday evening. The resolution is to be forwarded to the school board.

This matter was taken up some time ago by the association, and there were no results. Speakers, however, stated that with the constant exchange of clothing and other materials there was bound to be a certain amount of disease spread around. Presence of the office was not deemed healthy for children attending the school either.

MUSICAL PRODIGY TO GIVE RECITAL

Eleven-year-old Marie Balagno, who will give a piano recital at the Shrine Auditorium next Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock, has been hailed by eastern critics as a veritable child wonder. At this early age she has already won a Toronto Conservatory of Music gold medal, and her very interesting programme will include a Beethoven Sonata, a Mozart Fantasia, and other amazingly extensive compositions. She will be assisted by her uncle, William Balagno, well-known violinist of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra.

Yesterday evening about thirty or forty members of the old Fairfield Choral Society held a surprise party in honor of their former leader, Major W. Harry Watts, who is visiting here from Calgary. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. N. E. Fawcett, a former president, and among those present were Col. F. Forbes, past president; Miss Josephine Charlebois, conductor, and a large party of assistants, Messrs. Davis and W. Muncey. The members once again had the pleasure of singing under the baton of their beloved conductor, and Major Watts, at the close of the informal programme, told of his pleasure in hearing "his children" again, and expressed his regret that, owing to the duplication of choral societies here, the Fairfield Choral Society had to go out of existence. At the close of a very delightful evening, the hope was expressed by many that at some future date they might again have the pleasure of singing under Major Watts's direction.

Over 800 Guests Attend Firemen's Annual Ball

Jinx of Friday the Thirteenth Effectively Exercised Yesterday Evening

Effective Decorations and Novel Programme Add to Pleasure of Function

Any jinx associated with Friday the thirteenth must have been most effectively exercised by the members of the Victoria Fire Department to judge by the success of their annual ball yesterday evening, for over 800 guests attended the affair, which will do down as one of the most successful in the history of this popular function.

The "V.F.D." emblazoned on the black velvet curtain at the back of the orchestra dais was the focal point in the elaborate and appropriate decorative scheme, which was enhanced by the masses of flowers and potted plants, making an effective setting for the gay scene. Souvenir programmes, replicas of a fireman's helmet, were distributed, and much amusement was created by the dedication of each dance tune to some branch of civic life and activity.

Excellent music was provided by the thirteen-piece orchestra under the direction of Mr. Prescott, and a number of the choruses by Ernest J. Colton, well-known radio artist and soloist of the Home Gas orchestra, Vancouver.

The success of the ball reflects much credit to the energetic committees, the general committee including Captain R. T. Brindle, the president, assisted by F. Briers, Lieutenant H. E. Hunt, Lieutenant F. Barber, G. Laflin, J. Puckey, M. Woodburn, R. Winter and W. Matthews. M. Woodburn was master of ceremonies, assisted by G. Laflin.

On the reception committee were Firewardens Aldermen Walter Luney, Dr. J. D. Hunter, T. W. Hawkins, Fire Chief Alexander Munro, Assistant Fire Chiefs Joseph Raymond and Robert Taylor. The decorations were the handiwork of Ronald Winter, M. Woodburn, J. Puckey, M. Matthews, assisted by S. McKay.

THE DANCERS. Among those present were Alderman and Mrs. Andrew McGavin, Alderman and Mrs. J. A. Worthington, Alderman and Mrs. P. R. Brown, Miss Brown, Alderman and Mrs. Robert Dewar, Alderman and Mrs. Alex. Peden, Mr. and Mrs. B. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart, Alderman and Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Mrs. T. Smith, Miss Helen Smith, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wharf, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ansonby, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Johnson, Commander and Mrs. W. J. R. Beech, Brig.-Gen. and Mrs. Ashton, Mr. J. Medley, Miss R. Miss Marjorie James has arrived in Victoria from Banff, Alta., and is a guest at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. W. W. Jenkins, formerly Mollie Mercer, whose marriage took place on April 7, was at home to the ladies of the Burnside Lawn Bowling Club at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. W. Mercer, 304 Skinner Street, on Thursday afternoon. The guests were received by Mrs. Jenkins, who was assisted by her mother. The refreshments were served from a table prettily decorated with tulips. During the afternoon solos were sung by Mrs. F. Holmes and Miss Marjorie Kinsey.

In honor of Miss Marjorie Freemantle, a graduate of the 1934 class of the training school for nurses, St. Joseph's Hospital, Mrs. R. Freemantle entertained at the tea hour this afternoon at her home on Finlayson Avenue. Spring flowers were used in decoration throughout the home, with the same flowers effectively combined to form the centrepiece on the tea table, which was presided over by Miss "Pinkie" Grubb, assisted by Mrs. A. Hunsby and Miss Ellen Kline. The invited guests included Miss Freemantle, Mrs. Schmeitz, Mrs. F. Freemantle, Mrs. V. L. Chapin and the Misses F. Salmon, D. Hunt, M. Ahier, M. McCaffrey, M. Murphy, Jane Murray, L. Black, Carmonese, Lebedovick, K. Murray, J. McNabb, Annie Reed, A. Fry, C. Boyce, A. McDougall, L. Little, M. Chubra, A. Applegate and C. Schmeitz.

Miss Dorothy M. Jones, who is to be married shortly, was the guest of honor at a linen shower arranged by Frances Eastwood, Phyllis Pretty and Olive Brown, fellow-workers of the Pooch Dog Cafe, at the home of her parents, 1280 Topaz Avenue, Thursday evening. The many beautiful and useful gifts were concealed in a prettily decorated gift box. The bridge was played during the evening, the prizes being won by Mrs. M. Scroggs, first, and Miss D. Jones, consolation. A sit-down supper was served at midnight, the table being centred with an ice-cream wedding cake. Those present were: Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. M. Scroggs, Mrs. J. MacLennan, Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. K. Eastwood and the Misses D. Jones, Daisy and Alice White, Ruth and Kitty Rivers, I. Wallace, Dylis Hughes, Edith Bourne, Dorothy Lamerton, Olive Ireland, Peggy Silburn, Phyllis Pretty, Dorothy Jeeves and Frances Eastwood.

Yesterday evening about thirty or forty members of the old Fairfield Choral Society held a surprise party in honor of their former leader, Major W. Harry Watts, who is visiting here from Calgary. The affair was held at the home of Mrs. N. E. Fawcett, a former president, and among those present were Col. F. Forbes, past president; Miss Josephine Charlebois, conductor, and a large party of assistants, Messrs. Davis and W. Muncey. The members once again had the pleasure of singing under the baton of their beloved conductor, and Major Watts, at the close of the informal programme, told of his pleasure in hearing "his children" again, and expressed his regret that, owing to the duplication of choral societies here, the Fairfield Choral Society had to go out of existence. At the close of a very delightful evening, the hope was expressed by many that at some future date they might again have the pleasure of singing under Major Watts's direction.

Mrs. A. Morton Richmond entertained at a delightful tea yesterday afternoon at her suite in the Ambassador Apartments, Yates Street. The drawing-room was decorated with the Pride of Haarlem tulips, blue iris and paper white narcissi, and the tea table was covered with a handsome cut-work lace cloth, a centre of bowl of tulip spring flowers, tulips, narcissi and grape hyacinths. The hostess, Mrs. William Hyslop and Mrs. G. Aylward, presided at the table. For the first hour, Mrs. William Assestine (Premier, B.C.) and Mrs. F. A. McDermid (Vancouver), for the second hour, Assistant Premier, Mr. J. C. Macdonald, and Mrs. C. Macdonald, for the third hour, Mrs. Leslie Aylard, Mrs. Bruce Hutchison, Mrs. R. Kingham, Mrs. James Dickson, Mrs. Robert Dunn Jr., Mrs. P. B. Scourrah, Mrs. Norma Whitaker, Mrs. Fraser Lister, Mrs. R. H. Wilson, Mrs. Arnold Putnam, Mrs. M. Straith, Mrs. E. H. Street, Mrs. D. S. Tait, Mrs. H. F. Hodges, Mrs. R. B. Pattinson, Mrs. Jorje de St. Jorre, Mrs. H. E. Whyte and Misses Nora Drury, Elsie Kirk (New Westminster), Muriel and Allen Aylard, Margaret Watson, Sheila Tait, Grace Manson and Ella Dryden and Mrs. J. W. Welch (Vancouver).

Britannia W.A.—The regular monthly meeting of the W.A. to Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, was held recently with Mrs. Norris in the chair. Much business was discussed, including the choosing of the delegates for the forthcoming Canadian Legion convention to be held in Portland, Oregon, in June. The delegates chosen were Mrs. Norris and Mrs. Bourne. During the evening the ladies stood in silent tribute to a late member, Mrs. Burdmar. A luncheon and court whist will be held in the Hudson's Bay private dining-room on Friday, May 11. Reservations can be made for same by phoning EB30. The usual monthly social will be held in the club-rooms on April 24, at 8 p.m. The next dance of the auxiliary has been arranged for Thursday, April 19. One of the most popular orchestras will supply the music. A style show and Wabomb cotton demonstration will be held in the W.A. rooms, 715 View Street, April 27, by Mrs. Sparling. Admission will be free. An invitation is extended to all ladies to attend.

Junior Catholic League—The annual meeting of the Junior Catholic Women's League was held last evening, and the officers elected were: By acclamation, Miss Helen Redgrave, president; Miss Leonard Fletcher, vice-president; Miss Kathleen Morris, secretary, and Miss Eulalia O'Neill, treasurer. Members of the council, Miss Eleanor MacDonald, Miss Kathleen Nesbitt, Miss Norma O'Connor, Miss Agnes Nesbitt. The retiring president, Miss Agnes Grant, and the retiring secretary, Miss Irene Bantley, were presented with flowers and thanked for their work of the past two years. Annual reports of secretary and treasurer and of the various committees were heard with interest, and a active year was shown. A membership tea will be held at a date to be announced later.

SHOUR-PLIGHTING. The announcement is made of the marriage in Woodland, California, on April 7, of Kathleen S. Plowright to Chas. R. Shour, both of San Francisco, California. Mrs. Shour is a former Victoria girl, the eldest daughter of Mr. E. Plowright of "Oaklea," North Quadra Street.

WEDDINGS. RADFORD-KNIGHT. Of interest in Victoria is the marriage of Lillian Myrnesta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Knight of Cordova Bay, Victoria, and Mr. David Radford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Radford of Edmonton and Victoria, which took place in Jasper, Place, Edmonton, on Wednesday, April 11. ## Pay Farewell Tribute To Bishop Of Victoria

Congregation of St. Andrew's Cathedral Present Address and Gifts

City Council's Tribute to Bishop Murray Voiced at Reception

A farewell tribute was paid to Bishop Gerald C. Murray yesterday evening when the congregation of St. Andrew's Cathedral gathered in the Parish Hall to do him honor prior to his departure this evening for his new diocese of Saskatoon. A. G. Morry, Grand Knight of Columbiad, acted as chairman.

The hall was filled to capacity and the speeches and addresses were preceded by a short musical programme, in which vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Adele Ramsay and violin selections by Miss Rose Lee, accompanied by Mrs. G. Chapman.

ADDRESS PRESENTED. A eulogistic address to the Bishop was read by Dr. G. T. Aylward which voiced the devotion of the people and their regret at losing the stimulating guidance of a bishop who has been so greatly loved by them all. Mr. Morry on behalf of the congregation and friends presented a cheque to His Excellency at the close of this address, and Master James Wood on behalf of the altar boys of the cathedral made a touching little speech and offered a fountain pen from the boys who have served him in the sanctuary.

Representing the mayor and City of Victoria, Alderman James A. Adam spoke with appreciation of the term of Bishop Murray in Victoria, where he came four years ago and to whom Mayor Ansonby had intended presenting the keys of the city. He had thought it unnecessary to do so when he met the bishop, "for with such a smile a key would not be needed," he had said.

Mr. Adam read a letter from Mayor Leeming and the City Council expressing their appreciation of the bishop's services to the community, their regrets at his departure and well wishes for his future happiness in his new field of activity.

Rev. Father Cyril E. Evans, Rector of St. Andrew's Cathedral, spoke for the clergy in gratitude for the bishop's leadership and kindness to the bishop to priests and people. "From the smallest kindergarten child to the oldest diocesan priest he has shown himself a spiritual father, a happy family," he said. The building of St. Louis College would be a memorial to his term of office and to his interest in the education of youth.

BISHOP REPLIES. His excellency replying thanked Dr. Aylward for the "beautiful address, Father Evans for the kind words of the clergy of the diocese, and Alderman Adam for the gracious message from the mayor and council." He regretted that Mayor Ansonby had not given him the key of the city four years ago, he would then have looked himself in and thrown away the key, for life in Victoria has been very peaceful and very pleasant, and it is with genuine regret that he leaves his diocese and his people.

The bishop spoke also of the authority of Christ vested in the bishop, "that the authority is always the same, and that the personality and the character to the Lord himself," so he asked of the people the same affectionate loyalty for his successor as that which they have shown to him, then "God knows he should be satisfied."

Following this address the entire assembly then filed past the bishop for his blessing and a word of farewell. Present with his lordship on the stage were: Rev. Father Evans, Rev. Father Wood, Rev. Father Osborne, Rev. Father Gaultie, Rev. Father Kennedy, Rev. Father Albury, A. G. Morry and Dr. G. F. Aylward.

Daughters of St. George.—The regular meeting of the Victoria Lodge, No. 83, Daughters of St. George, will be held in the S.O.E. Hall, Wednesday, April 25, at 8 p.m. at 500 Johnson Street. The members are reminded of the joint banquet to be held on April 23, St. George's Day, at the Douglas Hotel at 6:30 p.m. Members are asked to get their tickets, or telephone G 3558 for reservations. The rummage sale will be held on Saturday, April 21, at 8 a.m., at 500 Johnson Street. The parcels may be left on Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m., or telephone G 6259. After the business meeting next Wednesday cards and dancing will take place.

KEEPING CHILD AMUSED ON RAINY DAYS

April rains may mean May flowers, they also mean grumpy, housed children who cannot think of one solitary thing to do except to sit at the window and wish they did not.

THE DRESSMAKING

The first portion of a rainy day is a blubbery. It's snug in the warm, damp and dark outdoors, and the diminutive housekeeper thinks of dresses she can sew for her own. The day is so short, the sun may be forth outmoded clothing in which to dress up and play lady or up on an improvised stage. The day of the housewife may take to the basement where she does much mending and hammering and saving an ambitious effort to finish some of the mother's day project.

The mother seldom needs have much concern for the child who is old enough to invent games for himself. A rainy day, like the sun, is a gift, as an opportunity to do one cannot tackle at any other time.

At the small runabout, used to play times in the open air, grumpy and hard to manage after hole day in the house. It is also possible to put on overhauls and coat and cap and take the child for a walk, but playing in the rain rather messy business and most prefer to keep their small area indoors.

RAINY PASTIMES

The mother with forethought will realize that not all days are out-play days even in the spring. They will concoct some interesting actions which will keep the child contentedly inactive. Cleaning out her drawers, for even the three old, is a pastime few children tire of. The drawer may be pulled on the floor, a clean newspaper laid beside it, and the child told to take out each garment or toilet article, and the case may be, and lay it neatly on the paper. When the drawer is cleared out—and it is fun handling all of mother's things—the drawer should be folded up and put back in the drawer.

It is a rainy day, and the child is bored. These may be old toys which have no use except for rainy days can be put on the shelf, and the child may be told to play with them. ## LIBERAL WOMEN HEAR SPEAKER

A. Chambers, Federal Candidate, Addresses Forum on National Credit

A well attended meeting was held by the Liberal Women's Forum at their headquarters yesterday afternoon, Mrs. J. S. Atkins, the president, presided. Mrs. W. Andrews presided at the audience with piano selections and Mrs. F. MacPherson contributed in a charming manner two vocal solos.

The tea table, presided over by Mrs. Moffitt and Mrs. Pilgrim, was daintily decorated with spring flowers and yellow tapers.

Alan Chambers in an interesting address stressed that "in this national crisis the control of internal national credit must be vested in the nation; this financial reform is the basis of recovery."

Speaking feelingly of the youth of today, the federal candidate sympathized with their weariness and impatience. He stated one great object of Liberalism is to instill hope and inspiration in the young people, marking that within twenty-five years time the men and women of today who are leading this country will be gone and possibly forgotten and to the very young will fall the burden of the future.

Since 1928 a war has been waged between finance and humanity and the solution of this problem must be financial reform or, by using the national credit. Those who have felt this financial crisis have heavily are the rank and file whose salaries have been reduced about one-third, higher salaries being reduced about 10 per cent, he claimed.

For 200 years, the speaker said, there has been a struggle for better conditions and higher standards and he asked should these ideals now result in a losing game?

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Chambers by Mrs. Atkins, on behalf of the members.

GAY BAZAAR OF NATIONS HELD

Two-day Affair Opened at First United Church Yesterday; on To-night

A "Bazaar of Nations," with stalls and programme cleverly carrying out the international motif, was opened with much success at the First United Church yesterday evening and will continue this afternoon and evening, when the programme will be repeated. About 400 members of the congregation and their friends attended the affair and business was brisk at the various booths and diversions.

COLORFUL STALLS
The entire schoolroom and gymnasium are given over to the event, which is under the general supervision of William Irvine and the Senior Sunday School Department. The national colors represented in the various stalls made the general effect highly colorful, particularly in combination with the moving figures of the attendants in the national costumes of Spain, Ireland, Persia, Canada, United States, Finland and Holland. All the stalls were in the upstairs hall, and the programme and review of nations took place in the gymnasium. The concert included numbers by the Italian School of Music and Dancing, which brought out examples of the art of six nations: Hawaii, Spain, China, Japan, Scotland and India.

FINE PROGRAMME
The artists for the different countries were as follows:

Japan, Lorne Barker; Jeanette Hay and the Yamashiro Sisters, India, Frank Spooner, Miss Edna Maundrell, Miss Florence Gillis, Miss Evelyn Baxter, Miss Margaret McMartin and Miss Shirley Bolton; Hawaii, the Italian quartette, Mme. Attfield and the Misses Grace Attfield, Elsie Robertson, Clotilda Castillo; Spain, Ernest Pulterson (accordion), Trina Stratford (Spanish dance), Jean Currie and Oswald Guest (tango dance); China, Ernest Crackford (magician); Scotland, Mrs. M. ## Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

What Qualities Make a "Regular Fellow"?

DEAR MISS DIX—We are a group of boys who would like your idea of the qualities that help make a regular fellow. THE BOYS.

Answer—Well, if I had a boy, I should like him first of all to be clean outside and inside. I put outside first because that is what first hits our eyes and is what we judge an individual by. If you see a boy whose hair is scrubbed and tubbed, whose hair is cut, whose clothes are pressed and whose shoes are shined, you think at once that he is a lad who has self-respect and who is willing to take the time and trouble to make the best of himself. Neatness and tidiness are a letter of introduction that the world honors at sight.

But if a boy is slovenly and dirty, if his skin is grimy and his nails untended and he looks generally as if he had been fished out of the ash-can, he shows that he is lazy and trifling and too self-indulgent to take the trouble to make himself presentable. His appearance is a give-away of his character.

I should want my boy to be clean in his thoughts as he is in his clothes. I should want him to be disgusted by dirty stories and obscene talk just as much as a matter of taste as of morality. I would want him to be immune from the temptation to do low things just because they are no more appealing to him than it would to wallow in filth or eat out of the garbage can.

I would want my boy to be fond of athletics and all sorts of outdoor sports, because I would want him to build up in his youth a strong body that would stand him in good stead when he came to grips with life when a man needs stamina to carry him through.

I would like him to be a good sport, who played every game fairly and squarely and who was not boastful and set-up when he won, nor cast-down nor a whiner when he lost. I would like him to be able to take it on the chin and come up smiling for another round. I would like him to stand up for his own rights and fight for them when he saw himself being defrauded, but I would not want him to be a brawler nor a bully.

I would want my boy to have enthusiasms. I would want him to be a hero-worshiper and to be thrilled to the marrow of his bones by great deeds and high adventures. I would want him to have the joy of life singing in his heart. I would want him to find pleasure in everything, in play, in work, in whatever the day brings forth because that puts salt in our daily bread, and without that feeling for life existence is flat, stale and unprofitable.

I would like my boy to have good manners. I should like him not only to be courteous, but to observe all the niceties of etiquette that differentiate the man of culture and worldly experience from the hooligan. Good manners are the sesame that opens doors of opportunity that remain forever shut to the uncouth.

I should like my boy to have a purpose in life. I should want him to have some definite goal to which he was struggling. I should like him to make up his mind as early as possible about what work he wanted to do in the world that he might bend all of his efforts toward perfecting himself in it. And I should like him to have the grit to stick to his job after the novelty had worn off and the hard sledding started.

I should like my boy to know plenty of girls and play around with them, but I should hate very much for him to get into any entangling love affair with one of them before he was old enough to know what he wanted in a wife, or even what he was going to be himself. It would break my heart to see him wreck his life by a too-early marriage. For the boy who loads himself down with the cares of a family is finished. He is tied to whatever job he can get. He is cut off from all the pleasures of youth. He is just a slave the balance of his life.

I would want my boy to treat every girl as he would want some other boy to treat his sister, and not be one of the cheap little sheiks who make a girl pay for being taken to the movies by being pawed over.

There are so many things I would like my boy to be—honest, fearless, industrious, independent, tender and pitiful to all weak and suffering creatures, chivalrous to women. In a word, I would want him to be a regular fellow. DOROTHY DIX.

L'Alliance Française.—The official lecturer of L'Alliance Française, Mme. de Mare will arrive in Victoria on April 25, and will deliver an address in Victoria College at 8 o'clock on "Famous French Women of To-day." This will be the last lecture of the series of four given annually for the benefit and pleasure of the French speaking residents of Victoria and for students of the French language. Further particulars may be had by telephoning the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. E. Hamilton-Smith, at E 4801.

May Be Nominee Of Three Parties

Republican, Democratic and Progressive Backing Likely For Senator H. Johnson

San Francisco, April 14.—Do not let it surprise you, if Senator Hiram Johnson wins the Republican, Democratic and Progressive nominations in California's August primaries. He is registering as a Progressive, but will file in all three "columns."

California law requires that any candidate for election shall have won the nomination of the party in which he registered. Johnson's friends organized a one-man party for him, so he is sure of the Progressive nomination and can run in the election campaign in any event.

The Democrats, following word from the White House through National Chairman Jim Farley, are supporting Johnson. The Hoover Republicans hate Johnson—who deserted Hoover for Roosevelt in 1932—but thus far haven't found a strong man to oppose him in the G. O. U. primary.

Johnson, nominally a Republican, has consistently won that primary in past years.

If Johnson becomes assured of easy victory, he will be able to leave the state and campaign for other Republican progressives up for renomination and re-election—including Cutting of New Mexico and LaFollette of Wisconsin.

By-products From Tar to Benzol Bring Hope to Miners

Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng., April 14.—The wheels of the coal industry are turning slowly, but surely. One by one the blast furnaces are being re-lighted, ironworks are resuming operations, and a new spirit of hope is slowly finding its way in the industrial cities, towns, seaports and villages whose principal interest is coal.

New industries and products are being evolved on the surface of the coalfields and many developments have taken place.

CRUDE TAR EXPORTS

An entirely new industry has been developed at Derwenthaugh on Tyne-side which provides for the export of crude tar products for road transport improvements in France and other parts of Europe, and also creates for preserving timber in America.

A new colliery has also been completed at Blyth, in Northumberland, which will provide work for 800 miners.

The surface plant of this new pit is the last word in modern mining equipment and the machinery is capable of washing and grading coal at the rate of 3,000 tons per day.

Good progress is also being made with plant for the production of petrol from coal. For more than a year a small plant at Billingham-on-Tyne has been making grade one petrol from coal, the dream of the coalfield population of Northumbria for the past ten years.

When this new distillery is completed the output will be 100,000 tons of petrol a year by the processing of 400 tons of coal per day, and the use of something like 1,000 tons of coal a day.

The manufacture of benzol from coal gas is also proceeding apace in Lancashire, where plants are now working in the gas works in Manchester, Oldham, Liverpool, Stretford and Padiham.

QUEBEC RADIO AFFAIRS AIRE

Remark Made By Commissioner on CKCV Was Joke, Commons Committee Told

Ottawa, April 14.—Implications that station CKCV at Quebec had been unfairly treated for political reasons under the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission brought a tense atmosphere at yesterday's sitting of the Commons radio committee.

A statement by Ernest Vandry, vice-president of Vandry Inc., owner of CKCV, on an interview he had had with Vice-Chairman Thomas Maher of the commission caused the members of the committee to sit up. The radio official had said, witnesses told the committee, "We are surprised that we, Liberals, should have addressed ourselves to him, a Conservative, for the correction of our wrongs."

A warm denial was made by Mr. Maher of any unfairness to CKCV or any preference to its competing station, CHRC at Quebec. All stations were treated with equal fairness. Politics played no part, and the attitude of Mr. Vandry had taken him by surprise, he said.

The radio commissioner and the Quebec City station owner engaged in conversation a few minutes later in the rear of the room, and Mr. Vandry asked the committee's leave to make a statement. The remark had been made in a "joking way" by Mr. Maher, with whom he had been in discussion, Mr. Vandry explained.

QUESTION OF HOURS

The air was cleared, but only after another difficulty in the minds of the committee was smoothed out. Reduction in the scheduled hours of CKCV had been made before the commission came into being, on a check-up by the Department of Marine which showed the station was operating for more hours than its permit called for.

Mr. Vandry wanted a "free channel" for his station, which he claimed had been obtained by Mr. Maher for CHRC. By using the two stations at Quebec City, he said, the public would be able to enjoy the full commission programmes in that district.

He denied his station had refused to commission programmes requested by the commission. Mr. Vandry complained his station could not get the commission programmes. Any charges made by his station were standard rates.

Against a statement of Mr. Vandry that his station had been offered free for lectures, the radio commission, which had charged $45 for a broadcast of a speech of Hon. Ernest Lapointe on the League of Nations.

Three Directors Listed For Trial

O. P. Van Sweringen, J. R. Nutt and W. M. Baldwin Face Fraud Charge

Associated Press. Cleveland, O., April 14.—Joseph R. Nutt, W. M. Baldwin and O. P. Van Sweringen had been indicted by a grand jury to-day on charges of issuing a false financial statement of the condition of the Union Trust Co. as of September 29, 1931.

Nutt, former chairman of the board of the Union Trust Co., which was closed for liquidation following the national banking holiday a year ago, also is a former treasurer of the Republican National Committee.

Van Sweringen is one of the widely-known, Van Sweringen brothers, who built a railroad empire from Cleveland real estate business. Baldwin is a former president of the bank.

Robert Syme Of Crofton Passes

Yesterday at the King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, the death occurred of Robert Syme of Crofton. He is survived by his widow, a son and a daughter, and his mother, all of Crofton; three brothers and a sister.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence of his brother, James Syme, at Chemainus.

PARKDALE Y.P.S. The Young People's Society of the Parkdale Sunday School held a very enjoyable meeting on Thursday evening. Miss Joy Dempsey, the secretary, read the minutes. The president, Stanley Ralph, was in the chair, and a series of talks were given by the members of the society.

WATER SURVEY TURNED DOWN

City Decides Against Proposal of John Dean For Report By British Experts

Efforts of John Dean to secure support of the City Council in a survey of the city's water system, for which survey he has offered to pay two-thirds of the cost, today had reached the same point they did several years ago when he made them to the council under the regime of Mayor Herbert Anscomb.

The council yesterday afternoon expressed its appreciation of Mr. Dean's well-intentioned action, but declined to support it. The council, however, did not think that even if a survey were made, it would not be available to carry out the work of the water department. Mr. Dean's proposal called for a report on the means of controlling water now running to waste. He had offered the city his personal cheque for $1,000 to cover the cost of a survey which, he said, would cost up to $1,500.

Speaking on the matter, Alderman McGavin suggested the proposal be submitted to the acting city engineer and the water commissioner. He did not believe the council was in a position to make a judgment on the value of a survey of the water system.

At a meeting of the water committee, Mayor Leeming asked if any demand had been made for the water, noting that the municipality which Mr. Dean's proposal, if completed, would not be asked for more water. He said that the water department would not be asked for more water. He said that the water department would not be asked for more water.

Alderman John Worthington voiced opinion it was not sensible to expect engineers in London to bring in a report on local conditions. He suggested an amendment that the city return Mr. Dean's cheque with the announcement that the council did not think the time opportune for such an undertaking. Mayor Leeming stated the city had the water it required. It was not more, it was up to the municipality to ask for it.

If a report were made and the city usually wanted the work completed in time, the report would be considered. The council would not be asked for more water. The council would not be asked for more water.

Alderman Alex. Peden supported Mr. Worthington's point, asking the city should go to the expense of engineering to report on local conditions. In the vote, Alderman Worthington's amendment was carried.

At the opening meeting of Beta Delta, a short debate: "Resolved that all public utilities should be controlled by the Canadian government" was held. The debate was staged purely as a practice for George Gregory and Luther Janson, Victoria High School representatives for the annual inter-school debate. The finals of the inter-school contest will be held next Thursday when a debating team from St. Margaret's School will stack up against the locals with the Modern History Club Shield at stake.

The first meeting of Portia after the Easter holidays will be held next Wednesday in the library. The doubles champion badminton players will be named next week when Phyllis Jesse and Betty Hughes meet Kewpie and Molly Unsworth.

A girls' inter-divisional softball league, organized by Miss Mona Miller and entered by nearly every division in the school, opened last Wednesday and will continue to May 14, when the winning teams will begin play-offs. ## Peace Crusade Opens Monday

People's Right to Declare War is Among Objectives

There will be celebrations of the holy communion to-morrow in Christ Church Cathedral at 8, 9 and 12.15 o'clock. The preacher at matins and evening will be Dean Quinton.

On Monday a meeting of the World Peace Crusade will be held in the Memorial Hall, under the chairmanship of the dean. This movement started ten months ago in Duncan on the inspiration of C. de C. Johnston and has two main objectives: The establishment of the people's right alone to declare war, and the control of armament manufacture.

The originator of the movement will be the principal speaker at Monday's meeting. Although the World Peace Crusade has been in existence less than a year there are already almost 10,000 members in ten countries of the world. Opportunity for questions and discussion will be given.

The meeting will start at 8 o'clock. The dean has been asked to repeat his lecture, "The Romantic Story of Codex Sinaiticus." This repeat lecture will be delivered on Thursday next in the chapel of the Memorial Hall and will commence at 8 o'clock. A collection will be taken and after providing for expenses the remainder will be forwarded to England to assist in the purchase of this ancient manuscript.

The Bible study group will resume its meetings on Wednesday next when the gospel, according to St. Mark, will be further investigated. The tutorial class will also resume its meetings next week on Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

EMMANUEL BAPTIST WEEK'S SERVICES

Annual Service of Lord's Day Alliance Sunday Morning

At the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Gladstone and Fernwood, the annual service of the Lord's Day Alliance will be held in the morning by Dr. Andrew S. Imrie. In the evening the pastor's theme will be "The Land of Lodebar." Bible school is at 9.45 a.m.

The following is the list of services for the week: B.Y.P.U. Tuesday, 8 p.m.; Bible training school, Wednesday, 6.45 p.m.; prayer and praise, Thursday, 8 p.m.; preparatory service for young people, 9.45 p.m.; Friday, men's prayer circle, Saturday, 7.30 p.m.

The music for Sunday, under the direction of W. H. Muncy, will include: Morning anthem, "My Soul Truly Waits Still Upon God" (Beal); evening, "Blessed Are They" (Weeley).

"THE LIFE-LOOK" BAPTIST TOPIC

Services at the First Baptist Church to-morrow will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. A. Reynolds, will have for his morning topic, "The Plumbline." At the evening service Mr. Reynolds will speak on "The Life-look," as taken from Isaiah xlv 22.

The music for the day is as follows: Morning, Mrs. Harry Lashby will sing "There is a Man Mine Eye Hath Seen," by Crowninshield, and Stanley Honeychurch, James Dimmore and John Collier will render a trio; evening, "I Will Extol Thee," by the choir, and the hymns, "The Lord is My Strength" (Stephenson), will be given by J. W. Buckley.

In the evening Rev. Thomas Keyworth of Sidney will preach, while Mr. MacKenzie preaches in Sidney. Sunday school will meet at 2.30 o'clock, but there will be no meeting of the young people's discussion group.

At the morning service Miss Mary Samuelson will sing "Open the Gates of the Temple" (Knapp), and the choir will render the anthem "Come O Thou Traveller Unknown" (Noel). In the evening the anthem will be "Pierce Raged the Tempest" (Ryley), and a solo, "If I Can Live" (Stephenson), will be given by J. W. Buckley.

In the evening the anthem will be "Pierce Raged the Tempest" (Ryley), and a solo, "If I Can Live" (Stephenson), will be given by J. W. Buckley.

The Sunday night lecture this week at the Seventh-day Adventist Church located at 2721 Graham Street will be of special interest to all who observe the Lord's Day. The pastor, W. C. Erntson, is very anxious that all should read their Bibles for themselves and as an inducement will give $5 to each person who can find one place in the Bible where we are commanded to keep Sunday as the Lord's Day.

The subject of Mr. Erntson's lecture will be "Is Sunday the Lord's Day?" He will invite a congregation to follow the lecture with open Bibles.

"The Romance of Common Things" The Secret of Sustained Enthusiasm is the subject of the sermon Rev. H. J. Armistead will deliver to-morrow at St. Aidan's United Church. At the evening service "The Romance of Common Things" will be the theme of the message. Sunday school meets each Sunday morning at 9.45 o'clock. The Young People's Society will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in the assembly hall.

WHAT VICTORIA NEEDS

By JAMES A. GRIFFITHS

The first matter to consider very loudly is the fact that Victoria is situated on an island. Naturally, every man, all freight, mail and express must come to Victoria and Vancouver and by water.

When we consider how many of our citizens, our mechanics and our other class realize that we are situated on an island and how important it is to have the very cheapest and quickest transportation available between the mainland and Vancouver Island. If we will just look back and think a moment or two we will remember how George I. Todd, the late Mayor A. E. Todd, Mayor Carl Penderay, Joseph Penderay and Mayor Leeming worked out an arrangement with the Victoria Publicity Bureau, which got operation of the car ferries between Victoria and Bellingham, in the late, and Vancouver Island. There are a few people in Victoria who feel the amount of money furnished the city to advertise Victoria through the Publicity Bureau is a waste of money, but these people do not realize that the tourists come to Victoria and Vancouver Island a few million dollars every year. This money comes to the city in the same way as if it were rained down there is little or no expense to the province in handling these tourists.

There are to-day in a very bad position with reference to car ferries between Victoria and Vancouver. As matters stand to-day, I consider the high cost of the present transportation system between Victoria and Vancouver simply shuts people from coming to Victoria and the mainland. To get an idea of what I mean, and we must face it as they are today, if a person from Vancouver wants to come to Victoria and bring his car, it will cost $8 for the car and $9 for the driver. It means if two people come from Vancouver to Victoria they will have to pay $18.00 for round trip. Should they wish to stay at night and use a room, it will cost them $25.00 more, which is a total cost of $43.00. This cost of transportation keeps a large number of people away from Victoria and it very seriously affects the development of our city and the south end of Vancouver Island.

D CAR FERRIES

But Victoria needs, and needs badly, for our better development, is a car ferry plying between Victoria and Patricia Bay, which is situated on the Saanich Peninsula. I mentioned Patricia Bay instead of Sidney because Patricia Bay is all protected from storms at all times of the year, and the water is so deep that any size vessel can easily get at a wharf there. Another reason that it is the nearest point to Victoria, and the C.N.R. has a railway from Patricia Bay to Victoria. I think these reasons are quite sufficient to prove to anyone that Patricia Bay is the proper place for a car ferry to the Saanich Peninsula. There is in the neighborhood of Patricia Bay and Vancouver, as mentioned, I would think it many times during the year, and I have been told by several of our business men and especially those who own factories here and do a large amount of business on the mainland, that they would never think of going to Vancouver without their cars. There is no question but that a very large number of people would come to Victoria at $3 return fare, for various business reasons, a number of which would be in connection with the Parliament Buildings. A further large business would be done in connection with the people of Vancouver coming to Saanich Inlet during the summer months who have summer homes here, and I believe once these car ferries were put on and run the whole year a large number of Vancouver people would buy and build on Saanich Peninsula and live there a large part of their time, as there is no question but that Victoria and the south end of the island is one of the finest places in the world to live.

This car ferry system would also enable farmers and fruit growers on Saanich Peninsula to grow and market their products at the largest and best market on the Pacific Coast, namely, Vancouver. The farmers could easily take a ton or two tons of their products on a truck and go to Vancouver and find a ready market. This, of course, would not only furnish business for the ferries, but would very quickly build up the Saanich Peninsula, and I believe it would only be a short time before Saanich Peninsula would all be brought up and cleared and under cultivation.

While these farmers were in Vancouver it would be an easy matter for them to go to one of the wholesale houses which have branches in Victoria and load up with goods for the mainland. This would mean that the goods would be loaded on the truck at the door of the warehouse in Vancouver and unloaded at the door of the warehouse in Victoria, and save handling these goods five times. Of course, they would not have to be packed, as they are to-day. All this means more business for the car ferries. Naturally there would be a certain amount of through freight, mail and express coming every day from the C.N.R. on the mainland to Victoria, all of which these car ferries could handle. No doubt they would be a very large item in the earning powers of the boats.

A NICE TRIP

I see no reason why the C.N.R. could not book all passengers coming over their lines from the east to Victoria by these car ferries. The trip through the many islands to Patricia Bay would be very beautiful, and the trip from Patricia Bay to Victoria through the Saanich Peninsula would always be enjoyed. By having these ferries, thousands of people every summer with their cars would go to Nanaimo, up the island, back to Victoria, and on these ferries to Vancouver and vice versa. In addition to this business, there would be a large number of cars coming from Port Angeles, Anacortes and Bellingham to Victoria, who would use these ferries from Patricia Bay to Vancouver on their return trip—all of this means more business for the car ferries.

These car ferries would undoubtedly be a godsend to the Duncan country as well as to Victoria, because they could call at Cowichan

NEW YORK'S GREATEST EASTER PARADE SINCE DEPRESSION STARTED

The skies smiled with sudden spring warmth, the mercury obligingly climbed . . . and all the welcome, glittering pageantry of pre-depression years was strikingly in evidence again when the camera recorded this spectacular Easter Sunday scene on New York's world-famous Fifth Avenue. From a vantage point opposite great St. Patrick's cathedral (at right), the reader looks down on a section of the near-record Easter parade that overflowed wide sidewalks into the street and made buses and other vehicles fight for right-of-way.

Bay and mean the same convenience to the whole of the Duncan country as they are to the Saanich Peninsula. In other words, as the matter stands to-day, a large part of the business done in Duncan doubles back from Ladysmith, while these car ferries calling at Cowichan Bay and running a train from Victoria to Patricia Bay to meet the boat. It is a small matter to get 1,000 people to go on an excursion; this would mean more business for the railway, better cars, better train facilities and a great improvement on everything in general.

No one must think for one moment that this proposition or idea is in direct opposition to any other transportation company, because it is not. What I am particularly trying to do is to develop the south end of Vancouver Island by doing something that is going to bring more money and people to Victoria and the surrounding districts. In other words, if this idea works out, and the population of the city of Victoria is raised from say 60,000 to 100,000 every hotel and every business concern going to get their share of the business so it will help everyone alike.

The question arises now as to the best way to get these car ferries placed on this run. My suggestion is that the business people of the city hold a meeting at once, and the matter will then be taken up as to how we can proceed. What I think we should do is to strongly advocate that one boat be built in Vancouver and one in Victoria, and to start now, to have them ready for the tourist business this summer, or as soon as these boats are completed.

This would also bring employment to a large number of men and it is surprising how cheaply these boats could be built, as they are only skeletons or hulls with very little exterior work. At the meeting to be held, a plan could no doubt be worked out to get this proposition moving.

By running these car ferries from Patricia Bay via Salt Spring Island and through the deep pass between Valdes Island and Galiano Island then straight across to Vancouver the distance is only some fifty miles. This route is the natural way to go from the mainland to Patricia Bay and vice versa. Therefore it should be developed and used and further more we know that it is impossible to build up the south end of Vancouver Island until something like this is done.

PREPARING FOR BIG CONVENTION

Portland Citizens Making Elaborate Plans For Canadian Legion Gathering

Portland, Ore., April 14.—Elaborate plans are being made by the citizens of Portland for the entertainment of thousands of Canadian Legionnaires who will meet here for the annual convention, Pacific Northwest area, British Columbia Command, June 11 to 14. This will be the first Canadian Legion convention ever held outside the British Commonwealth, and it has a distinctly international significance.

The theme of the convention will be "International Unity and Peace," and a movement will be launched on the convention floor to bring the two great Anglo-Saxon nations closer together. The American Legion is solidly behind plans for welcoming and entertaining the Canadian Legionnaires on their visit to the "City of Roses."

The convention will be held at a time when Portland stages its annual rose festival. This festival, held each year since 1907, is a time when Portland loses its identity as a great commercial centre to become a fairyland of roses and merrymaking. The city is officially proclaimed the "Realm of Rosaria," the embodiment of beauty and hospitality.

A beam of light shoots through space at a speed of 186,000 miles a second, or eight minutes in making the trip from the sun to the earth.

this lode of gold that is for ever haunting him.

He has been to the lode, and has found gold. But it lies in the wilds of Mongolia, near to the Russian border.

Enrico heard of the gold from a Russian refugee, who was afraid to go himself, and this is the tale he told recently.

2,000 MILES TREK

When he dreams he is also saving, saving until he can return to Mongolia for the gold.

His search means hardship and a trek of 2,000 miles.

"I made the trip to Mongolia and found the lode just where the Russian had said. But ill-luck came shortly after my find and I lost my bearings."

"I wandered into Russian territory, and was imprisoned as a spy by Russian soldiers."

"After I had been released I was robbed and again taken prisoner, only to be released when my credentials were proved correct."

MODERN THRILLER

Enrico's story reads like a modern thriller, but he vows it is true.

The food given him by the Russians consisted of two loaves. It was so cold he slept by day and walked at night.

After a great struggle he got to Harbin and was helped by the American consul there. Making his way to Canton he sold medicine to the Chinese and finally reached Hongkong.

There Enrico signed on an England-bound cargo boat.

"That is how he arrived in England. 'Sure there is gold in Mongolia, and it's a good reason,' he said. 'As soon as I get the money I am going back alone.'"

MAY TAKE OVER LIGHT FRANCHISE

Ladysmith, April 14.—The suggestion that the Nanaimo Light, Power and Heating Company take over the supply of power to Ladysmith was brought definitely nearer at the meeting of the council, which Mr. Boness and Mr. Macdonald of the Utilities, discussed the matter before the council table.

Mr. Boness, vice-president of the Utilities, who is here on a visit from Calgary, proposed that his company make a comprehensive offer to purchase the Ladysmith franchise, power plant and the distribution facilities.

In the event of the city's accepting the purchase offer, E. T. Reid, the city electrician, will be retained on the Utilities staff, as will the office staff in connection with the present department.

To save prolonged litigation and legal costs the council agreed to an out-of-court settlement with the Canadian Surety Company on the Callin $5,000 bond. The amount of the settlement is $3,500, each party paying its own costs.

SEEK CURE FOR RARE DISEASES

Three Children, However, Rally Under Scientific Treatment

Associated Press

Chicago, April 14.—Physicians at the Cook County Children's Hospital are fighting to save fourteen-year-old Genevieve Lisa from a rare disease which is causing her skin to mummify.

Already the tissue beneath the skin of her face has entirely disappeared and the skin is drawn taut across the bones.

Scientists call the ailment from which Genevieve has been suffering since she was a year old "acrokeroderma with calcinosis." They explain this means increased deposits of calcium or chalk being laid under her skin, which itself is atrophying.

New York, April 13.—Life looked brighter to-day for three of four children suffering from rare diseases, but for one of them, at least, the respite was only temporary.

Seven-year-old Benny Hendrick, whose muscles are slowly turning to bone, was back home near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and neighbors said they saw him playing Wednesday in the rain. Benny spent six weeks in a hospital, where doctors worked in vain to correct glandular disturbance that is producing an over-supply of calcium, bone making chemical, in his body.

Of three little four-year-old girls suffering from Leukemia, a condition that results in elimination of the red corpuscles from the bloodstream, Roma Garrett, at an East View, N.Y., hospital, had a fine day Wednesday. The lethargy which results from the disease was very akin to death Monday when a blood transfusion was given. Roma rallied, delighted in new found strength.

The blood transfusion was given when hope had been abandoned and only to keep the child alive a little longer. There will come the time when even blood transfusions will not rouse her.

Willie Mae Miller, at Memphis, Tenn., still plays with her dolls, singing bits of improvised melody. A blood chemist is treating her with a special diet and says he can cure her. Doctors say she cannot recover.

Theodore Aloisio, at Christ Hospital, Jersey City, is in a "serious" condition, and has shown no change in the past few days. Her case is far advanced. Her dolls—He unnoted on the foot of her bed. She is "viciously" weary.

Resigned to the loss of his daughter, Theodore's father has offered her as a sacrifice on the altar of science.

"If she could be taken to that other hospital so they could experiment on her, maybe they would be able to save the life of that other little girl," he said.

LIQUOR FOR ALASKANS

Juneau, Alaska, April 14.—Within a few hours after President Roosevelt signed a bill repealing Alaska's prohibition laws, the Alaska liquor control board announced to-day that legal liquor traffic would be opened in Alaska on May 1. Shipments of liquor into the territory are legal at any time now, members said, but a few weeks' time will be needed to set up a liquor control system.

"A Bible and a Newspaper in every home"

said Benjamin Franklin, whose death on April 17, 1790, will be remembered next week

IF YOU asked the founder of a great library system what reading matter you should place in your home, you might expect him to hand you a sizable list of books.

But old Ben Franklin, father of the free library system of our country, being a man to put first things first, might have looked over the top of his glasses at you, and repeated "a Bible and a newspaper in every home."

Franklin himself was Printer and Publisher . . . and an advertising writer. He recognized, as you do, that good advertising is NEWS. Back in 1780, when a ship came to port with a consignment of India shawls and some merchant announced this in the newspaper, you may imagine that that item meant more to the ladies of the day than the usual chronicle of somebody's cow "lost, strayed or stolen."

An editor gathers up the news from all corners of the globe, just as a merchant gathers up his stock of goods. Then the story of both is carried in the newspaper. Both mean a great deal to every reader.

Mayor Leeming Given Flowers

Local Florists Participate in "Saying It With Flowers" To-day

Mayor Charles Stanton of Rochester, N.Y., to-day "said it with flowers" to the chief executives of more than 1,000 Canadian and United States cities. Among those so remembered was Mayor Leeming who this morning received a gorgeous floral tribute, delivered by local florists.

Delivery of the flowers was coincidental with the opening in Rochester of the fifteenth annual National Flower Show. Those who brought the flowers to Mayor Leeming are local members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, the international organization which is devoted to the delivery of flowers by wire.

Accompanying the huge bouquet, which filled the executive's office with a spring-like fragrance, was a message of greeting from Mayor Stanton of Rochester. It read:

"Upon this occasion, the opening in our city of the fifteenth National Flower Show, it is with pleasure that I extend the goodwill of the people of Rochester to the people of your city by 'saying it with flowers' by wire. This is made possible through a world-wide organization of bonded members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association."

Baskets of flowers were also delivered this morning to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Premier Pattullo, the editor of The Times and the editor of The Colonist.

Brown's Victoria Nurseries, members of the F.T.D.A., took advantage of the day to remember, with baskets of flowers, the C.P.R. and C.N.R. telegraphs and the editors of The Colonist and The Times.

MILLION ATTEND CHURCH SUNDAYS

New York, April 14.—The spring season is a good time, though, to write about churches, and to point out that New York really does have a religious nature. Every Sunday something like a million people attend the 600 churches scattered the length and breadth of the city, from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, up on Morningside Heights, down to aged Trinity at one end of Wall Street, and the hallelujah missions of the lower East Side.

It is easy to be statistical about the Cathedral because the figures are so impressive—$20,000,000 spent so far; $10,000,000 more required to complete the building; another $10,000,000 needed for interior furnishings; central tower 445 feet high; begun in 1891, to be finished by 1955; will seat 10,000 people.

The Rockefeller have given tapestries and a lot of money. The Stuyvesants gave a baptismal font. The King of Siam sent a massive teakwood cabinet, and Czechoslovakia a huge crystal chandelier.

CHURCH PICTURING
It is all very Gothic, and doubtless will be the grandest piece of architecture this country will see for a long time. Nearly like a lady named Mrs. Walter L. Hervey, who began taking photographs of the Cathedral almost since construction was

WHENEVER you purchase flowers or plants—whether for delivery to someone hundreds of miles away or for your own home—you will find assured value and real satisfaction in dealing with the quality florists who display this "Winged Mercury" emblem.

It means that they are members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. This international organization of 6,000 leading florists handles hundreds of thousands of "flowers-by-wire" orders every year; swiftly, surely, satisfactorily and economically. Its members are pledged to the highest standard of quality and integrity. Let this emblem guide you to satisfaction in all of your flower purchases.

THE TWELVE SENT FORTH

By WM. E. GILROY, D.D.

From those who heard the word of Jesus as he went about teaching and preaching in the cities and villages and who responded to his teaching Jesus drew twelve into an inner circle of discipleship. Later he appointed others and sent them forth, two by two, proclaiming the message of repentance and the kingdom of God.

But throughout his brief ministry, until his death and resurrection, it is with the experience of these twelve that we are concerned chiefly. We have no detailed picture of the means by which Jesus taught and trained them, but we have repeated indications that the human material was not molded altogether easily, and that even the greatest of teachers was not able always to make the truth clear and effective in the mind and heart of his pupils.

Concerning some of the twelve apostles we have very little knowledge, but others, particularly Peter, John, James, Thomas and Judas, stand forth in the New Testament narrative in a distinctive way. They must have been men of unusual character to have been drawn to Jesus as they were.

Men who were self-satisfied and conventionally minded would have been repelled rather than won by a teacher who uttered such new and strange truths. But these twelve were men of an earthly kingdom, and there is much in the New Testament record to indicate that these men followed Jesus because they believed they were going to share in a great kingdom that he would establish on earth.

Even after they had witnessed the example of Jesus and listened to his teachings of unselfishness and love, they still were capable of quarrelling about positions of preference and who should be the greatest in the kingdom.

They were not moved with compassion for the multitude as their master was moved. It is instructive that Jesus sent them forth to the work of preaching and ministering in his name even before they were instructed fully in any sense perfect. The work of the world has not been done by perfect men.

The masters of grace often are imperfect in some respect, and it is no judgment upon those who minister in the name of Christ that faults are found in them, though there is nothing in the gospel that they preach to palliate or condone these faults.

Even the best of men learn slowly to discover and conquer their unworthy acts and tempers.

The great thing about these twelve disciples is that their hearts were centred on right and that they had the courage and bearing of their convictions. Jesus chose them in spite of their faults because they had in them the very root of matter.

The gospel that they had to preach to the people was the same gospel that they could preach to their own hearts—a gospel of repentance and of preparation for the kingdom of God, though they did not realize at the time, as they were later to learn, that this kingdom was spiritual rather than material and temporal.

How patiently and effectively Jesus dealt with these disciples; how well he understood them and saved them from their own deepest faults, turning their very weaknesses and temptations to triumph; for the faults of these men were the fault of those who were intense in their convictions and allegiances.

Men needed courage for the work to which they were going and which inspired them with his own faith and fearlessness.

Men never went forth to a greater task nor have men ever achieved as much from small beginnings as has come from the work of the twelve whom Jesus sent forth.

AGAIN CHOOSES DANIEL SERIES

To-morrow evening the pastor of the Central Baptist Church, Rev. J. B. Rowell, will again take up the series entitled "Daniel: Visions and Prophecies; the Unfolding of the Universal Sovereignty of God," the subject being "Daniel's Seventy Weeks and the Great Prayer and Confession—The Need of the Hour."

At the morning service the pastor's message will be based on the scripture, "Yea, I have loved Thee with an everlasting love; therefore loving kindness have I drawn Thee." The Lord's Supper will be observed at the close of the service.

The Sunday school and Bible classes meet on Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock; the prayer and praise meeting on Thursday at 8 o'clock, and the young people's meeting on Friday at 8 o'clock.

"The Gospel Sunshine Hour" will be broadcast over C.F.C.T. on Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, and on Wednesday evening at 7:05 o'clock.

"SIN, DISEASE DEATH, REAL?"

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, to-morrow.

The Golden Text is: "I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord" (Jeremiah xxx 17).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Give us help from trouble; for vain is the help of man. Through God we shall do valiantly; for He it is that shall tread down our enemies" (Psalms lx 1, 12).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortal theories make friends of sin, sickness and death; whereas the spiritual scientific facts of existence include no member of this dolorous and fatal triad" (page 552).

TEMPLE HEARS TWO PASTORS

Rev. John Robson will preach at the morning service at the City Temple, choosing for his sermon topic "The Best Equipment for Life's Success."

The evening service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. W. C. Weston, who will speak on "Dissolving Fears." Miss Mona Bradford will be the evening soloist.

The Women's Auxiliary and Ladies' League will hold a luncheon in the dining-room of the Hudsons Bay Company's store on Friday, April 27. As the number of guests is limited, it is desired that those wishing to attend will procure their tickets from the members as soon as possible.

"SECOND COMING" FOR DISCOURSE

At the Victoria Truth Centre to-morrow morning W. Newell Weston will speak on "The Second Coming." There will be a solo by Edward Girard "The Angels' Serenade" (Brava).

The Sunday school meets at 11 o'clock. In the evening at 7:30 o'clock Mr. Weston's topic will be "Words, Wise and Otherwise." There will be a duet by Dr. and Mrs. Johns, "The God Whom I Adore" (Glory).

The subjects of meetings during the week will be as follows: Wednesday, 8 o'clock, "Transformation"; Friday, 8 o'clock, "Fundamentals of Truth." Public invited to all meetings.

GUILD OF HEALTH
The regular meeting of the Guild of Health will be held on Tuesday at 8 o'clock in the chapel of the Memorial Hall. Dr. J. E. Rowe will conduct the service and give a short address on fundamental health principles. A special invitation is extended to men since the subject will profoundly challenge the masculine point of view.

Funeral services will be held on Tuesday at 2 o'clock at McCall Bros. Funeral Home, after which interment will be in Colwood Burial Park.

EASTERNERS SEEKING MINE

Hercules Property on Phillips Arm Is Being Examined; Fine Prospects

Several powerful groups of eastern Canadian and United States capitalists are endeavoring to acquire control of the Hercules Consolidated Mining and Smelting Power Corporation who hold the largest single group of mineral claims on the Pacific Coast, situated at Phillips Arm, approximately 120 miles north of Vancouver.

The Hercules property was being owned with one of the groups mentioned and their engineer is in Vancouver at the present time and is expected to leave to-morrow for the view of checking the reports.

The consummation of this deal is likely to mean that one of the largest mining operations in B.C. will be started at Phillips Arm within the near future. It is expected that definite news regarding terms and time limits, will be announced next week.

The Hercules camp at Phillips Arm presents an active scene at the present time and a crew of more than twenty-five men are engaged in active mining and in constructing a road from the beach camp through to the Dorothy Mortons' workings where more than 2,000 feet of tunnelling has been completed and the vein proven to a depth of 450 feet. At this depth the vein shows a width of 25 feet 6 inches. A new tunnel, also being driven from a point within 100 feet of the vein which has its objective, the Dorothy Morton vein, which it is expected will be intersected at a depth of 3,000 feet.

The length of this tunnel will eventually be approximately 5,000 feet, but in the process of driving, it is expected that it will intersect a number of veins which have been discovered on the surface between its portal and its objective.

Mr. H. Wright, D.S.C.M.A., representing Chalmers and Richardson, fiscal agent for the company, has recently returned from an examination of the property. The highlights in his report are as follows: "A model camp, both from the viewpoint of sanitation and equipment; excellent working conditions; assays ranging from 63 ounces of gold and 18 ounces of silver to 8.71 ounces of gold and 39.2 ounces of silver; excellent transportation facilities. The Union Steamship calls within 150 feet of the camp."

FEWER VISIT SUNSHINE INN

But Necessity Still Shown By Thousands of Meals Served

Although its urgent need is still shown by the number of meals served, a steady decline in the number of visitors to Sunshine Inn is shown in the report of its operations during the third quarter of the third year since it opened.

The founding of its establishment is well known to have arisen from a wish to give service to the city and district, and provide a safeguard against hunger and undernourishment until readjustment of conditions could make it unnecessary.

A comparative record of the first, second and third months of this year and the number of meals provided, as against the same months of last year, show that the requirement is on the downward trend. In January of 1934 9,445 meals to applicants were provided, against 10,337 meals in January, 1933, or a decrease of about 9 per cent. In February of 1934 8,173 meals were provided, against 9,670 meals in February of 1933, or a decrease of 15 per cent.

In March of 1934 8,442 meals were provided, as against 10,616 meals in March, 1933, or a decrease of 20½ per cent.

15 PER CENT DECREASE

The difference for the whole of the quarter enumerated above amounts to 4,572 meals less than for the same three months of 1933, and shows an average decrease of 15 per cent. "I wish to draw attention," says B. J. Gadsden, the founder, "to our need of foodstuffs, vegetables, etc., of which Sunshine Inn has been the agency for turning into food for eating. Fresh rubarb will be plentiful soon, and we will be grateful to be remembered by anyone having some to spare."

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

A financial statement covering the period of the past six months, ending March 31, showing surplus or deficit of each month from October 1, 1933, follows: October 31, 1933 (deficit), $1,812.01; November 30, 1933 (surplus), $217.00; December 31, 1933 (surplus), $115.00; January 31, 1934 (deficit), $1,131.16; February 28, 1934 (deficit), $1,490.28; March 31, 1934 (surplus), $116.62.

"The many regular contributors of goods, such as merchants, bakers, dairies, fuel dealers, utilities and private donors have been consistently generous," says the report. The small private donations of goods, however, have decreased, which obliges us to accept of the more valuable contributions for a reasonable time. It has not been the policy to contemplate such methods as tag days, or asking those who are least able to support Sunshine Inn, to do so, but to manage it with economy and integrity in such a manner as should receive the support of those who are best able to support it.

"The funds, both current and reserve, are under the charge of The Welfare Foundation, of which F. W. Weaver is chairman and G. A. H. Feden is secretary-treasurer. The other members being Fred Landsberg, R. H. B. Ker, F. A. Lindsay, and B. J. Gadsden.

CCF MEETING STORMY ONE

Ontario Delegates Debate Reorganization; Woods-worth Speaks

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 14.—The convention hall was charged with friction to-day as different factions of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation contended here.

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., president of the federation, intimated trouble-makers would be ejected when he was forced to reprimand a delegate for an objection. The leader had named Angus MacInnis, M.P. for Vancouver South, as chairman of the convention when one of the members voiced an objection.

At the outset of the meeting the labor section met with its first upset. An overwhelming majority opposed Mrs. E. Morton, nominated for the secretaryship in opposition to H. Orloff, national conference nominee.

Mr. Woodsworth explained that the labor section met with its first upset. An overwhelming majority opposed Mrs. E. Morton, nominated for the secretaryship in opposition to H. Orloff, national conference nominee.

Mr. MacInnis told the convention it had met to deal with a serious situation in the life of the C.C.F.

"The Labor Conference," he continued, "was a makeshift body which was organized a year ago. For the first time in years, labor in Toronto managed to stick together for a whole day. It was an artificial body created to get in the C.C.F. framework."

OTHER FIELDS

Mr. Woodsworth said the C.C.F. was not purely an Ontario organization and "if the worst comes to the worst there is enough virility in the four western provinces and in Montreal to carry on."

He feared the organization had been "frittering away our time in partisan politics when we should have been attacking capitalism," and called for united action.

Faced with the possibility of a federal election in the autumn, Mr. Woodsworth said the C.C.F. would concentrate in campaigning for it rather than provincial elections.

STEAL PARTS TO RUN CARS

Magistrate Warns Against Allowing Boys Without Funds to Have Cars

Parents in the habit of providing old cars and motorcycles for their sons, who are unable to pay the cost of their operations, encourage crime because the youths often tend to steal parts for their vehicles, stated Magistrate Jay in the City Police Court this morning in placing two lads on suspended sentence for theft of an automobile tire, tube and wheel.

According to Norman W. Whittaker, counsel for the boys, they stole the wheel to fit onto a motorcycle on which they were going to visit the Peace River country. It was the wheel of an Austin car, and would not fit a motorcycle, said the magistrate, "I cannot understand why parents allow boys to have cars and motorcycles when they cannot afford to operate them," said the magistrate after hearing a plea of leniency, and character evidence from two ministers.

"I have had a number of cases lately of theft of gasoline and car equipment, and I find in most cases it was taken because it could not be paid for."

He questioned the advisability of parents allowing this practice, and pointed out they were really not helping their children. He allowed the boys off on suspended sentence only because there were no previous convictions of any nature and because of their good character.

Wire Thanks For Flowers

Thanks from the city of Victoria to Rochester, New York, was conveyed in a telegram sent by Mayor David Leeming to Mayor Charles Stanlow of the United States city, expressing appreciation for the floral greetings sent here to-day.

In accordance with custom in recent years, Rochester wired flowers to the city to commemorate the eastern centre's show.

"Please allow me to extend to you (oh thanks of the citizens of Victoria for the beautiful floral greeting from the people of Rochester," Mayor Leeming's read. "Victoria is famous as the city of sunshine and flowers, and we take special pleasure in saying it with flowers. Trust National flower show in your city meets with every success."

SPEND SUMMER AT QUALICUM

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rowlands of Greenwich, Conn., Attracted By Island

Intending to stay at Qualicum Beach for the summer, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Rowlands, of Greenwich, Conn., who have been staying at the Empress Hotel since the early part of the season, left by motor to-day for the up-island resort.

They left Connecticut to put in the winter in Arizona and after seeing the Indian country they motored by easy stages to the coast until they reached Victoria.

The eastern couple had an itinerary they first set out, but that has now been revised to include an indefinite stay on Vancouver Island, so delighted are they with their visit.

Planes To Open Rich Gold Area

Whitewater Property to Be Developed; Machinery Goes By Air

Vancouver, April 14.—The modern side of British Columbia's mining development, which has followed the advent of the airplane came out in strong comparison to the pioneering days of the industry with the announcement by the Taylor-Windfall Company that they will fly into the Whitewater a pilot mill and necessary equipment for development of mineral property there.

For many years E. J. "Whitewater" Taylor, president of the company, has made an annual trek into this comparatively inaccessible region to work his claims. He would bring out a gold brick each year and called it his "private bank," a group of Vancouver business men, who honored him at dinner recently were told.

The distance to be traveled and the lateness of the season allowed only a few weeks work on the property each summer, but by airplane the company will be able to start six weeks earlier than would be possible under the former conditions.

The company, it was announced, has been studying the result of airplane transportation for machinery in the operations of the Bullock Company of New Guinea, which carried all the machinery for dredging operations over mountains 6,000 feet high. In the Great Bear Lake area of Canada, planes have been used to great advantage for this purpose.

BOWLING ALLEY SAFE IS ROBBED

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 14.—Breaking into Chapman's bowling alley, Seymour Street, a thief managed to open the office safe and stole $140. Writing a note to the management, the thief placed it in the safe and locked the door. The note read: "See that everybody is out at night and always lock your safe."

In spite of the fact the note implied the intruder found the safe unlocked, the management decided to police the door was locked and could only be opened again by means of the lock combination.

THE Lone Wolf's Son

By Louis Joseph Vance

"Have I pretended to admire the ways of your infatuation?"

"You might, I should think, be a little broad-minded—you whom they once called the Lone Wolf!"

"If I had not been that one I might be more patient with your evident impression that his pet has fallen on your shoulders. They called him the Lone Wolf because he had the wit never to have a companion to betray him—his identity was never known till long after he had made his last move."

"Must you assume I have accomplices?"

"You have one, at least, in myself."

"Lanyard smiled—an accomplice after the fact to-night—probably the only one who will never betray you."

"Not even if I refuse to be moved by your preaching on the subject of your good sense?"

"I don't see why, if you disapprove so strongly."

"Because I too am an imbecile, in my own fashion, because of this deep affection I already have for you."

"Is it then imbecility to have a father's natural feelings?"

"What else, when I must, against my better judgment, protect and cherish one whom I may not trust?"

"You think as all of me as all that?"

"I know men's hearts too well. I know that the man who thinks himself too clever to play the game by the rules is cheating not life but himself; that the man who can't be true to himself will end by being false even to those who love him."

"Yet you were the Lone Wolf when you won the heart of my mother."

"The day I won her I ceased to be the Lone Wolf; not so much for her sake as for purely selfish considerations. A woman may love a man she can't respect, but her love won't last."

"One is to understand the Lone Wolf never prowled again?"

"Never."

"What, never? Not even once, for old sake's sake?"

"Are you being foolishly impatient? Or just damned impatient?"

"Forgive me. I had merely the wish to be humorous. The contrite look which the son put on passed into a dark stare. 'By what you tell me, you are a sentimentalist. Sorry if I wound you.' A sign of amused indulgence encouraged him. 'You put love on a pedestal; a pretty gesture, but to-day—is it not a thought degraded?'"

"I am afraid you have been unfortunate in your young experiments."

"Not at all," the boy retorted in some pique. "Permit me to assure you—"

"Since you have it yet to learn that true love is never out of fashion."

"I know women too well to take love seriously."

"I am sure you do. But your views will change, once you are loved by a right woman. Till that happens, we only waste each other's time with such discussions." Lanyard got up and, as Maurice rose in turn, dropped both hands upon his shoulders. "Good night, my son. It grows late, and we have all this voyage—"

"But," the scamp objected in a twinkle, "aren't you forgetting something?"

"What, for example?"

"To make me promise I'll try to be a good boy for your sake."

"That I shall never ask of you."

"What! You don't consider it your duty—"

"Mum never yet quitted his folly for anybody's sake but his own, and didn't return to it. The day will come when you will fall out of love with the picture of yourself as a devilish fine fellow, thumbing your nose at a pack of stupid police. Till it does—you couldn't make any promise good you might give me."

But at the dog Lanyard turned back for a last word.

"Oh, by the by—watch yourself with Fennio Crozier."

"Why? Maurice was startled and resentful. 'What does she know?'"

"Much more than you do. She's far cleverer than you. If you value your secrets, pull wide of that young woman."

Lanyard reserved his wink to the ironic gods till in the dusky passages that led to his own cabin.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel!"

SUNDAY, APRIL 15, 1934

Friendly stars dominate to-day, according to astrology. It is a day of rest and intellectual refreshment. Muses should be a special order of the day.

Despite precautions criminals will multiply in the coming months, when danger to the lives of men in high place will be even greater than in the past. The stars indicate a period of domestic happiness and peace. Women should be happy to-day, for the aspects favor them at home and abroad. The rule encourages domestic happiness and pride in attainments of children.

For young girls the stars indicate an accession of interest among eligible young men. The Sunday caller should be all earnest suitors.

Although the configuration is lucky for women and those who are wooed, it is threatening for letters of every sort, especially for love messages. Personal appearances are best to-day.

Until the streets are made safe for citizens it is best to be exceedingly cautious in going about after dark. In American cities, astrologers announce, for the stars promise increase in crime in new and hideous forms.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of real happiness and dependent upon material gain.

Children born on this day probably will be sensitive and highly organized. Subtle signs are generally imaginative and many are interested in religion.

Henry James, famous novelist, was born on this day, 1843. Louis Adolph Thiers, French statesman, 1797, and John Motley, historian, 1814.

MONDAY, APRIL 16, 1934

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary direction. It is fairly good away for making investments that represent high risk and heads of business should make comprehensive plans to safeguard property and prepare for ease of pension.

The stars seem to preclude sudden turning to world affairs that will precipitate swift efforts to meet unexpected orders in military and manufacturing industries.

Great increase in commerce on the Pacific Coast is indicated by midsummer as well as a greater volume of travel to the Orient.

Cuba, New Mexico and Texas may suffer damage from violent storms.

Neptune is in a place read as forth shadowing agitation regarding certain phases of the life and manufacturing of alcoholic beverages. More stringent regulations in many states are indicated.

Astrologers prognosticate the working out of an intricate system of distribution for food and other necessities which will begin with small local units and extend to distant sources of supply.

This is a favorable day for thinkers of every class. Scientists should benefit especially from the rays of the stars, which foreshadow great progress toward better living conditions for all.

Although the stars indicate extremes in human experiences there is to be a gradual establishment of a medium which secures widespread comfort in American life.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of extraordinary lures from practical paths. They should be careful to stick to everyday duties, especially if they are under forty.

Children born on this day probably will be determined and strong-willed as well as talented. Subjects of this sign usually have fine brains and healthy bodies.

Sir John Franklin, famous English explorer, was born on this day, 1790. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Charles Villiers, Pease, portrait painter, 1741; Olive Court, actress, and author, 1839; and Ford Madox Brown, English painter, 1821.

Japan Grimly Prepares For 1935, Her Crucial Year

Panama Canal Success Proves Government Can Operate Huge Projects Efficiently

Progress of work on the Madden dam, a huge project now under way to assure an ample supply of water for the Panama Canal, is shown here.

Building and Running Great Ocean Link Model To World

by WILLIS THORNTON

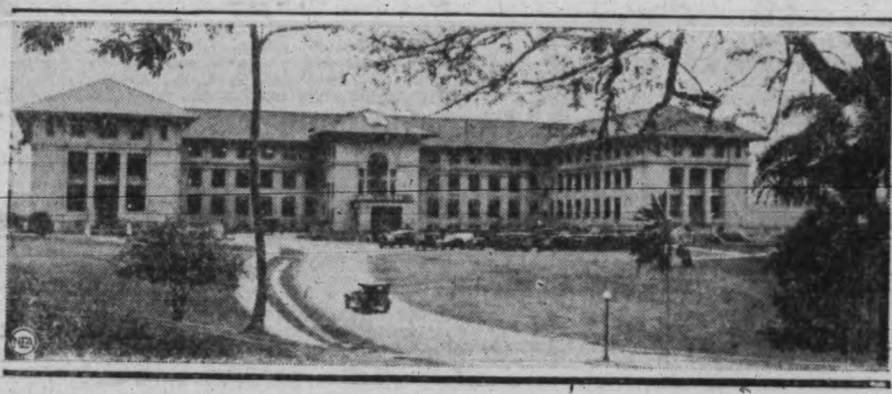

WASHINGTON. CUSHED with victory in the Spanish War, glorying in a place in the international youthful America rolled up sleeves, spat on its hands, tackled the Panama Canal "the Big Job."

It is what the papers called it thirty years ago. It was the "Big Job" of civil construction on a scale of to-day's Tennessee or Boulder Dam, or the St. Lawrence project.

America did the job. And America the whole world have been gaining since. The job was a brilliant success, and even to-day improvements and additions are being made.

After thirty years, "The Big Job" was the Panama Canal. Before the world as a model of government can do in building and operating a great civil project.

ONLY is it operating on an admirably efficient basis, but in ten years just passed, the report indicates net revenue of $533,103,000.

From the canal and its associated business enterprises of $11,911,200.27—which is equivalent to a return of 2.23 per cent on the investment of $533,103,000.

And business is looking up. The Panama Canal officials here point out, is a good barometer of world business. There is no way of stimulating its business by advertising or promotion.

Ships either go through or not, according to whether there is trade or there is not. And here is how traffic has been running since the end of last fiscal year in June, 1933.

RECORD IS BROKEN IN JULY, 401 vessels made the transit of the canal; in August 416.

In fact, a Chicago university professor, Marshall E. Dimock, is now making a survey of the activities of the Panama Railroad, and it seems likely that it may be used as a model for other government corporations now being created.

OBSERVERS WERE AMAZED

REPORTERS and magazine writers, during the ten years from 1904 to 1914 (when the first ship passed through the canal), returned to the United States goggle-eyed.

They wrote stories which pointed with pride or viewed with alarm the vastness of the work, the tight on sanitary conditions and yellow fever, the entry of the government into shop-keeping, railroad operation, restaurant operation, ship repair and drydock operations, and other fields previously held sacred to private enterprise.

One writer breathlessly speculated on the effect on the United States when young workmen would return from the Canal Zone, impressed with the esprit de corps of the "Big Job," the effectiveness of Col. George Washington Goethals, the chief engineer who worked for pay alone, not for a share in profits.

OPENED IN AUGUST, 1914

MAKE the dirt fly! was the slogan repeated in a thousand newspapers and magazines. And it flew, disregarding dire prophecies of those who saw the United States dropping, plump into the lap of Socialism.

The treaty with Panama was ratified February 23, 1904. And on August 15, 1914, the canal was opened to commerce. Because of the World War the formal and official opening was not held until 1920.

The story of French failure under private management was told and retold—how the Compagnie Universelle Du Canal Inter-Océanique de Panama would go in bankruptcy, disgrace and scandal, dragging with it the great Suez Canal builder, De Lesseps broken in mind, spirit, and body by the failure. How the first two United States engineers, the civilians Wallace and Stevens, quit the job.

And how, when Goethals, the army engineer, took hold, the dirt flew. Goethals became a national hero, riding a wave of national pride. "We," the United States, were showing what "we" would do.

NEW DAM BEING BUILT

THE DIRT still flies in Panama. In 1930, a terrible drought reduced the level of Gatun Lake to the point where only utmost water economy permitted ships to pass through the canal at all.

This huge lake, formed artificially by the building of Gatun Dam, is eighty-five feet above sea level, and saved that much digging in the canal. To guard against further shortage, Madden Dam, above Gatun on the Chagres River, was authorized as a "feeder" to Gatun.

All through this year construction at Madden Dam will be going on. The job was awarded private contractors in 1931, and will cost about $4,500,000.

Enlargements of drydock facilities at Cristobal to take vessels up to 385 feet were the principal developments to plan for the year, though a dozen smaller projects of improvement and maintenance were carried on.

EFFICIENT SYSTEM USED

THE ACCOUNTING system for the canal was placed in the fiscal year 1932 on what Governor Julian L. Schley calls "a form recommended by the Bureau of Efficiency, embodying as far as practicable the principles and practices approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission and state boards regulating public utilities."

Governor Schley, by the way, is the son of Admiral Schley of Spanish War fame.

In accordance with this system, July 1, 1931, was fixed as the close of the construction and development period of the canal. All interest on United States treasury funds up to that time was capitalized, and interest since that time made a charge against operating expenses.

The government does not actually charge the canal interest, but it is set up against canal revenues just to make the system as near like that of any other public utility as possible.

So in the fiscal year, 1932-33, interest charges of $15,993,180.28 (that is 3 per cent of the capitalization of $523,106,000.47) were set up against income. The canal failed to cover this by $4,081,970.91—that is, it produced only 2.23 per cent interest instead of 3 per cent, and nominally has a deficit of that amount.

But the main point is that, leaving the accounting details out of the question, the canal to-day is taking in more than it spends.

FREE OF SCANDALS

THIRTY years of government administration of the canal have been completed without a scandal of any kind or even a serious charge of graft or maladministration.

Slight frictions between Panama and the zone authorities over sale to Panamanians of goods from government stores, and over regulation of the morals of Panama City have developed; but never have been serious.

Arms and Munitions Factories Running Full Blast; Doom Feared If Trade And Territory Not Expanded

Fight For Naval Parity, Battle To Keep Mandated Islands, Withdrawal From League Due Next Year

William Philip Simms, famed United Press war correspondent and expert on foreign affairs, has started a tour of the world. He will visit the principal cities of foreign countries, interview leading statesmen, and write on the world situation as he sees it.

By WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
Copyright, 1934

TOKIO, April 14.—Arms and munition factories are running full blast in Japan in preparation for what everybody refers to as the coming "grave crisis."

In 1935 and 1936, the war party claims, and the public believes, things will happen which will make or break the Japanese Empire.

So, by 1935, the army must be at its peak. The navy must be at its peak. The rank and file of the country must be prepared for any emergency and ready to back the government to the limit.

In 1935 Japan's withdrawal from the League of Nations will become effective. She fears she will be more than ever isolated, with the world against her.

In 1935 will be raised the question of ownership of the South Sea Islands, scattered over the Pacific from Hawaii to the Philippines—the Marshalls, Marianas, Carolines, Yap and Pelew.

Held under League of Nations mandate, Japan has not the slightest intention of giving them up. She regards them as of the greatest strategic value.

NAVAL CRISIS FACED

IN 1935 WILL be faced the crucial naval conference—unless it is called off, as many believe it will be because it has no chance to succeed.

Finally, in 1935, if "the crisis" has not been precipitated before, Japan may face a showdown with Soviet Russia—a new Russia, whose armament is increasing daily and which views with mounting alarm the menace of being cut off from the Pacific by Nippon.

At the naval conference Japan will demand parity with Great Britain and the United States. This, she will claim, is her right as a great power and because upon her shoulders rests the burden of peace in the Orient.

Unless she wins her point, it is indicated, she will withdraw from the Washington and London naval limitation treaties as she did from the League of Nations, and claim a free hand to build any kind of navy she pleases.

MUST SAVE FACE

BUT—AND this is important—while she plans to press her right to parity, she apparently does not insist upon actually building a parity navy.

This sounds paradoxical, and is. But to the Oriental mind, nothing could be simpler.

The problem is one of national pride and honor. Nippon does not wish it to continue a matter of record that she, a major world power, possesses rights in any way inferior to those allowed others. Once her right is acknowledged, I am informed, she may agree of her own free will not to avail herself of it.

While Tokyo's naval policy has not been announced, the above represents the views of high naval, military and civil officials who will help formulate that policy.

PREFERS DEATH TO "SHAME"

JAPAN to-day is in the position of a first-class power attempting to maintain her place in the world on doomsday over whether the books of the canal make a real comparison with private operation possible. For instance, private interests ask, what private company could borrow money at 3 per cent, and then build a tax-free project?

And some authorities answer, what private firm has to build certain of its facilities on an uneconomic scale for purposes of the national defense, and what private firm has charged against its operating expenses the direct cost of civil government, health, and welfare activities?

The point is that the canal is more than supporting itself, and that it has for thirty years been an invaluable public project, free of scandal, and effectively and efficiently run as to stand as a model before the world.

While Japan exerts every effort to meet the crisis which its statesmen say the nation will face in 1935, Uncle Sam and Russia closely watch developments in the Far East.

the resources of a third-class power. Unless she can acquire additional resources, she must eventually step down to the lower rung.

That she will do this voluntarily is out of the question. She will invite annihilation first. She will either get the "new deal," or Asia will again be turned crimson.

Japan, in her programme of expansion, has reached midstream only. The water about her is swift and deep. She must push on to the other shore, or turn back.

Manchuria and Jehol are too much or too little territory for her needs—too much because it will inevitably invite a counter-attack from Russia and China, too little because it lacks sufficient of those vital resources which a vast empire must have.

SEEKS TRADE LEADERSHIP

MAINTAINING one of the world's biggest armies, 250,000 effective, and demanding a navy second to none, Japan also is making a supreme bid for world trade leadership. This colossal programme requires vast reserves, in peace or war, of steel, oil, coal, rubber, cotton, sugar, various chemicals and metals, none of which is found in sufficient quantity in her new domain.

Without oil modern armies and navies are practically helpless. Japan occupies twelfth place in oil production after the United States, and eleventh after Soviet Russia. The United States produces $45,000,000, Russia 160,000,000 and Japan 2,000,000 barrels annually.

Even counting the oil she gets from the northern half of the island of Sakhalin—leased from Russia and undependable in time of war—Japan produces only a fourth of her peacetime needs.

Manchuria has no known free oil.

COAL, IRON QUEST FUTILE

JAPAN had hoped to find a supply of iron and coking coal in the new territory, but again seems doomed to disappointment. The ore is of poor quality and she still imports nine tons for every one she produces.

The story of rubber, cotton, and other essential materials is more discouraging still.

Japan's grandiose dream of empire is based upon her scheme to become another Great Britain, turning raw materials into finished products and shipping them to the four corners of the earth in Japanese bottoms.

But once more she seems to have arrived on the scene a little too late, though for the moment her foreign trade is booming. Even Britain is regarded as having long since passed her peak in this line of business and to-day is facing a reorientation of her national economy.

BUILDS HOUSE ON SAND

JAPAN, therefore, seems to be building, at least partly, on sand. The conditions which made Britain are doubtless gone forever.

And clouds are already darkening the Japanese trade horizon. At this writing twenty-seven countries are taking steps to curtail Japanese imports.

With emigration and exports both checked, Japan almost certainly will seek to carve out a still bigger empire for herself. Within its borders she will endeavor to find, not only the raw materials necessary, but a subject population to absorb her surplus goods.

It is either that or return to the status of a hungry little island teeming with people and racked with poverty.

Psychiatry Novclized In "Private Worlds."

NEW New Testament: Queen and Gladstone

By KENNETH DRURY

FRUSTRATIONS AND COMPLEXES
PROJECTED upon the background of a large psychopathic hospital and the treatment of its patients are the lives of three doctors, two male and one female, the young bride of the younger male, and Myra, the oversexed sister of the older doctor.

Myra is of the type that always gets her man, so that when she looks at the young doctor-bridegroom, Alec Macgregor, complications arise, ending in his marital unfaithfulness. Between Alec and the older doctor, Charles Drummond, complex arises because Alec has been put in as head of the institution over Charles's head. Charles and the woman doctor, Jane Everest, nourish suppressed passions for each other. Jane, in turn, is the cause of a complex on the part of Sally, the bride, because to her Jane seems much closer than she is to her husband, due to a long professional association.

From this line-up a tangle, nearly fatal, develops. The three doctors are brilliant psychiatrists. Their achievements in handling and curing difficult cases in the wards show a high degree of skill and intelligence. But when it comes to dealing with their own frustrations and understanding their own emotions, they are inadequate—until the final chapters.

Such is the plot of "Private Worlds," by Phyllis Bottomo, just published in Canada by Thomas Allen of Toronto and in Boston by the Houghton, Mifflin Company.

THE ACTIVITIES of the institution, the study of various forms of insanity among the patients are set out in almost classroom detail. One finds oneself as a reader acquiring confidence to discuss neuroses, escapes, defence mechanisms, paranoias, manic-depressive, complexes, frustrations, compensations and similar phenomena. Miss Bottomo familiarizes us with approved practice in modern psychiatry, problems in the cases of doctors as well as patients being explored in a way to remove for the layman the mystery that ordinarily envelopes such.

The title of the book is drawn from the fact that the insane person builds up in his own mental processes a "private world." This tends to become complete in itself, untroubled from the world around him and incapable of normal reactions to it. To penetrate this solitary confinement is the problem of the psychiatrist and no patient can be cured as long as he holds himself inaccessible.

Miss Bottomo is the daughter of an American preacher, but was born in England. She was a patient in a Swiss sanatorium after a physical breakdown. During the time she was in the army officer. She lives now in Italy, the Austrian Tyrol or in her flat in Munich. She visits this continent regularly, and last Sunday evening many Victorians heard her speak over a San Francisco radio station. She has seventeen books to her credit, her first novel being published by Andrew Lang in London when she was only seventeen. She is keen, epigrammatic, a skilful story-teller, with a wide following among sophisticated readers.

"Private Worlds" will delight readers who appreciate good craftsmanship, and particularly those with a medical penchant.

"MISTAKES" IN THE BIBLE

THE MOST widely-read book in the world, is in for some revision. "Many parts of the New Testament are grossly inaccurate. Not because of faults in the translation from the original Greek, but because the work of translating into the original Greek was slipshod. As a result, theologians for centuries have been teaching some things that have not been gospel."

This is the news brought by Harpers for April, which publishes the article, "The New New Testament," by F. A. Spencer, head of the Department of Semitic Languages at Yale.

Most theologians have accepted as fact the traditional statement that the Gospels were written in the Greek from which the translations for the Western world were made. Recent research, however, according to Professor Spencer, demonstrates that our Gospels "were not composed in Greek, but translated, sometimes rather badly, from Aramaic originals based on ultimate sources which date in part from the lifetime of Jesus Himself." Some 250 blunders in translation from the original Aramaic have already been traced. John has the highest average of nearly two to a page. Matthew, Mark and Luke run about one error to the page. Besides wrong rendering of individual words, the sense of the Aramaic idiom was missed in many cases.

IT IS expected cries of protest will now emanate from theological conservatives, similar to the protests that came from conservative scientists recently when the discoveries of Albert Einstein challenged traditional beliefs of physical science. For, as Dr. Spencer says, "It is not pleasant to confess a major error, and still less so to admit that the whole basis of a lifetime's work is wrong. Yet this is precisely what now confronts conservative New Testament exegetes, who have not only clung to the notion that the Gospels were composed in Greek, but have accepted it as a truism that the Pauline epistles were the first bit of Christian literature ever set down on paper."

However, it is felt the result will be to restore dignity and sense to these 250 passages which have long puzzled interpreters. "It creates substantially a new New Testament that must be reckoned with by all future editors and translators," Dr. Spencer says. "And it dates at long last in their proper period the Gospel versions which many historians have felt must be early, contemporary sources."

EPITOMIZE THEIR AGE

OF THE Victorian age, Philip Guedalla writes in his newly-published "The Queen and Mr. Gladstone," that two names alone describe it as a whole. These names were Victoria and Gladstone, and

"They regarded it. Their slightest sayings and their slightest mannerisms—her royal poise, her pony carriage and her gifts of Paisley shawls, her reverberating dialects, his tree-fellings at Hawarden, his literary preferences and his Sunday readings of the lesson—were of the very texture of the age."

A COLLECTION of the verse of the Hebrew poet and philosopher, Moses Ibn Ezra, will be issued by the Jewish Publication Society of America on May 1. The verse has been translated into English by Dr. Solomon Solis-Cohen. Ibn Ezra has been called the "Hebrew Omar." He was one of the writers produced by the Jews of medieval Spain during the eleventh century.

"Scarlet Letter" Original Brings $2,600 at Sale

ONE OF the few presentation copies of the first edition of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter" to appear at auction brought $2,600, said to be a record price, at the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., in New York, last week.

This copy of the first issue of the Hawthorne work was one of the choicest copies which has appeared at auction, having all the required textual points, with the appearance of being unread from the day of publication to the present time.

The copy was presented by Hawthorne to George W. Mallett and evidently was stored away for safety as an association item. It was bought by Charles Seesler.

A copy of one of the typographical masterpieces of the nineteenth century, the Kelmscott Press edition of the works of Chaucer, in a white pigskin binding by the Doves Bindery, went to Lewis Hatch for $1,500.

An extra-illustrated set of John Ashtons' "Napoleon I" went to W. H. Bonnell for $800. The same price was paid by Harry F. Marks for a first edition of Hardy's "The Dynasts," with the rare first issue of the first part and with title page dated 1903.

A fifteenth century French illuminated manuscript "Book of Hours," with twelve large miniatures, was bought by D. A. Crowley for $725. William Cairns gave $675 for a copy of the first edition of Eugene Field's "Tribune Primer."

The autograph manuscripts of twenty-three poems translated by Eugene Field from Horace went to James F. Drake for $600.

W. R. Woods paid $500 for a collection of about 245 letters detailing the private life of Robert G. Ingersoll, the famous American author, orator and Liberal.

Thackeray Letter Brings £600 At Auction

Special Correspondence of The Victoria Daily Times LONDON.

BITTER times were reflected in the prices paid at the recent Sotheby's sale of a collection of letters, manuscripts and books by William Makepeace Thackeray, part of the library of Comte de Suzannet of Lausanne. Fifty-two items produced £2,465.

Maggie, dealers, paid £600 for the principal item, Thackeray's famous letter in 1847 to a publisher's reader praising "Jane Eyre." Thackeray wrote:

"Who the author can be, I cannot guess. If it is a woman, she knows her language. Some of the love passages made me cry."

The Comte de Suzannet bought the letter last year for $550.

IT'S SILLY FACE," a novel which has had good reviews in England, has been rechristened for American publication. Holt will publish it with the title, "Bitter Bread." The author, Nikolai Gubsky, is a Russian, who lives in England and writes in English.

England's Ablest Ruler Tried to Save Mary; Why She Never Wed; Elizabethan Finances.

By W. T. ALLISON

WHY DO people still keep on writing books about Queen Elizabeth? The answer is not difficult. Elizabeth is the ablest monarch that ever ruled over England. She is the most admirable queen, whose world history has recorded. She fascinates each succeeding generation of mankind because of her many-sided personality, her charm, her force of character, her glory. Helen of Greece was more beautiful, Cleopatra more hypnotic, Victoria more religious, but Elizabeth had more brains than all three combined.

J. E. NEALE, the author of this new Life of Elizabeth, is Professor of English History in the University of London. He has been working on this biography for years and he has produced a book not only of pseudo-psychological guesses, not compounded of tedious prejudices, not based upon insubstantial theories as to this and that movement, but a sober, sane story gleaned from the examination of a thousand sources. "Professor Neale writes well, he knows his period, he has an eye for the dramatic, and he is more interested in persons than in events."

MARY, ADULTERESS AND FLUENT LIAR
MOST AUTHORS picture Elizabeth as being ruthless in her treatment of Mary, the Catholic Queen of Scots. Professor Neale does not argue the question, but accepts the Chalket Letters as genuine, and therefore describes Mary as a cunning, double-crossing, and a liar. He has come to the conclusion that she was an adulteress, a murderer, and an unmitigated liar. He thinks that Elizabeth showed her much consideration and would have succeeded in restoring her to the throne of Scotland, if Mary had refrained from writing foolish letters and from engaging in plots.

"If Mary had been of a less sanguine and more patient nature, she would have been content on the lessons of the past, instead of being an inveterate plotter and fluent liar she had been content with one string to her bow at a time, if, in short, she had been honest over these negotiations—then there is scarcely a doubt that Elizabeth would have restored her, a crippled queen maybe, but free from a Queen's mad and sad schemes. Here, there, and everywhere, whispering one thing in the ears of Spain, and the opposite in the ears of France; writing love letters to Norfolk, and equally ready to write them to the Duke of Anjou or Don John of Austria; sending encouraging messages to the English rebels; planning to escape; building up a first-class plot to sweep Elizabeth from her throne; and then, after negotiations for her restoration had foundered through the discovery of the intrigues with the Norfolk marriage. The negotiations in 1570-71 were to be ruined by the Ridolfi plot."

ELIZABETH WAS LONG-SUFFERING
IT IS IN building up the story of the plots in which Mary took part that this new biographer shows how long-suffering Elizabeth really was, how for years she refused to bow to the demands of Lords and Commons that the royal prisoner should be put to death, and England freed from anxiety both for Elizabeth's safety and from the peril of French or Spanish invasion. After Mary was tried at Fotheringhay Castle by the commissioners—thirty-six peers, privy councillors, and judges, some of whom, he it noted, had been Mary's friends—Queen Elizabeth sent word that they were to suspend judgment and return to London. This order was obeyed, but later they met in London, reviewed the evidence, and decided "with one assent" to adjudge Mary guilty. Parliament met the same month and the first thing they did was to petition for the immediate execution of Mary. A deputation waited upon the Queen. Although it had been proved that Mary had plotted to have her assassinated and to marry a foreign prince, Elizabeth declared that she bore Mary no malice.

"After the discovery of the conspiracy, she had written secretly to her in order, if she would confess all, to cover her shame and save her from reproach. Mary had steadfastly denied her guilt. Even now, if she thought she would truly repent, she would most willingly pardon and remit her offence. The deputation was dismissed with promise of a message."

But it was not until another deputation of vociferous members of Parliament had waited upon her that she promised to publish the sentence against Mary. When she did so the Londoners rang the church bells, lit bonfires, and sang psalms.

Of course, it may be said that all this hesitation on the Queen's part was play-acting, but Professor Neale proves that she had been merciful to Mary when other plots had been revealed, had tried hard to save the Duke of Norfolk from the block when he was implicated, and that she does not deserve the reputation that most historians have given her of being cold-blooded. Throughout this book she is pictured as being more compassionate than any of her advisers.

WHY LEICESTER WAS REFUSED
WHY DID Queen Elizabeth never marry? This question has been the subject of endless conjecture. A German historian actually wrote a book some years ago in which he tried to prove that she was physically malformed and for this reason remained single. Professor Neale dismisses this brusquely by quoting contemporary medical opinion to the effect that Elizabeth was capable of bearing children. Burghley and other members of her council, urged her for years to marry because they were worried about the succession. If they had heard anything of this yarn about her physical abnormality or if they believed it, if they did hear it at all, there would certainly have been no frantic efforts on their part to find her a husband. It was fervently hoped by her subjects that Elizabeth would marry, but the irony of it was that whenever the Queen began to flirt with Leicester, the Duke of Alencon, or any other possible husband, a deep growl arose from her people. Leicester was hated by many of the leading men in England. Elizabeth knew perfectly well that she would have ruined her own peace and that of her kingdom had she allowed her affection for him to sweep her into marriage.

ELIZABETH'S SKILL IN FINANCE
OTHER BIOGRAPHERS have charged Elizabeth with meanness, but Professor Neale proves that she was often very generous. Sir Christopher Hatton, one of her ministers, died £30,000 in her debt. The Earl of Essex, her favorite, young nephew, who turned out to be so ungrateful to her, received monopolies and money from her in abundance. Generally, however, she was sparing in gifts because she had to be. This biographer deals more thoroughly with Elizabeth's scanty revenue and her financial skill than any of his predecessors. So marvellous does the Elizabethan age seem to us to-day that we forget that the population of England scarcely exceeded 2,500,000 people. The ordinary revenue amounted to about £200,000 per annum, and out of this sum the

Now Lion Hunter

Three months of lion hunting in East Africa made Ernest Hemingway, the author, merely yearn for more. "All I am here for," he said, when, as shown here, he arrived in New York from the jungles, "is to make enough money to return."

Vina Delmar's Heroine Over-devoted Mother

"THE MARRIAGE RACKET," by Vina Delmar, is a little bundle of this and that about a girl who was a vaudeville dancer and who got so tired of the day-to-day routine that she up and married a tired business man whom she met while playing in a small city.

The new husband turned out to be a rather unimaginative and stolid sort of chap, but he wasn't really so bad, and the marriage might have been a success if the girl hadn't had a baby and developed a sudden, overwhelming and quite unreasonable case of exaggerated mother love.

Because she did—she was the kind who breaks up the party and makes all the guests go home if the baby so much as sneezes—she ceased to be either a good wife or a good sport, and the husband must have been considerably relieved when she finally left him and took her baby to New York, where she supported herself by dancing in a night club.

Falling as a wife, she succeeded a little better as a rich man's mistress—though the author makes her out to be such a complete and cantankerous idiot that it is hard to see how she kept the job ten minutes. Anyhow, she lived in the lap of luxury for quite a while, and did her best to transform her child into the most odious kind of a mother's darling.

You'll be glad to know that it all turned out well in the end. Somebody finally made her see what a waste she had turned into, and the end of the book finds her ready to reform and give the kid, and everybody else, a break. . . . And that, oh gentle and fearless reader, is that. It is published by Harcourt, Brace and Co.

Queen had to maintain herself, her court, and the whole system of government.
The normal cost of government was regarded as the private concern of the sovereign, just as much as the financing of a nobleman's household and estate was the nobleman's concern. Taxation was not a normal but an abnormal incidence on the country; and any sovereign, who, like Elizabeth, looked to popularity as the source of her strength, had to bear this in mind. Over the whole reign parliamentary taxation averaged rather less than £80,000 per annum; for the first thirty years, it averaged little more than £50,000. Thus, until 1588 Elizabeth had a total average income, ordinary and parliamentary, of not much more than £250,000 a year, out of which to uphold her royal magnificence, run her government, fight her few battles, and play paymaster to Protestant Europe."

So, it is no wonder Elizabeth often seemed to be stingy to poets and courtiers, who were always begging for some sinecure or other.

One of Professor Neale's best chapters is that in which he depicts the Queen in her visits to country mansions, and he does not fail to include what most biographers omit, her contacts with her humble subjects. It is easy to see why she was so much beloved by the people of England. If she had not had an iron constitution, she could never have survived the constant worries which she had to face. She lived in a troublous time when England was threatened by France and Spain, and it was only by subtle diplomacy and by her bold upon the men who served her with such devotion that she was able to bring her country successfully through its many crises.

Books and Things

THE BOOK of the Month Club choice for May is "Merchants of Death," a study of the international armament industry, with special attention to armament sales methods. The authors are H. C. Engelbrecht, associate editor of The World Tomorrow, and P. C. Hanighen, who wrote the biography, "Santa Anna, Napoleon of the West," which was published last week by Coward, McCann, Dodd, Mead will publish "Merchants of Death" on April 25. The publishers say the book is thoroughly documented and is based on both official reports and personal research.

ANOTHER book concerned with munition makers is coming from Harpers. George Selous has just finished writing it and it has not been previously announced. It will be published as soon as copies arrive from the printers. Its title is "Iron, Blood and Profits: An Exposure of the World-wide Munitions Racket."

THE LITERARY GUILD choice for June will be "Unfinished Cathedral," by T. S. Stripling, last year's Pulitzer Prize winner. Doubleday, Doran will publish the novel.

THE THOMAS Y. CROWELL COMPANY observes its one hundredth anniversary this month. This publishing company had a large part in introducing the great Russian writers to the American public.

SIMULTANEOUS publication in twelve languages is to be given "Nine Etched From Life," the new book by Emil Ludwig, which Robert M. McBride will bring out on April 30. The German edition of the book will be published in Holland. This is Mr. Ludwig's reply to the funeral pyre which the Nazis made of his books last year. This author's earlier books have reached a circulation of 1,200,000 in Germany alone.

FLOYD DELL is finishing a new novel about young love and marriage, to be called "Drums of Morning." Farrar & Rinehart expect to publish it late this spring.

ARTHUR STRINGER, personally well known in Victoria, who used to write the motion picture serials in which Pearl White appeared—"Perils of Pauline"—was one who has just delivered the manuscript of a new novel to his publishers, Bobbs-Merrill, and started on a cruise to the West Indies. The new book will be called "Man Lost," and is a story of Labrador.

RAE D. HENKLE has just accepted for early publication a novel about young writers and newspaper workers in New York. The title is "To-morrow Is Another Day." Henrietta Buckmaster wrote it.

TO THE already vast library on Keats, Oxford University Press will add shortly a limited edition of the notebook the poet kept while he "walked the hospitals" studying to become a doctor. This notebook is on view at the house at Hampstead where "Ode to a Nightingale" was written, now the Keats Museum. Maurice Buxton Forman has transcribed and edited the notes for publication.

Fannie Hurst's Lates Treats Cost of Giving Genius Its Chance

IT IS a slightly funny, tangled and laborious story that Fannie Hurst gives us in her latest "Anitra's Dance."

The story has to do with a musician—a thwarted, Beethoven-like genius, who in himself in a tumbledown house in New York torments himself with unavailing efforts to create a symphony which will depict the long tragedy, and the triumph of the human life.

His task isn't made easier by his family—collection of misfits if ever there was one—selfish and ineffectual squabbles, utterly incapable of appreciating what he is trying to do. But there's one exception—the youngest daughter, Anitra, a wisp of a girl who does have sense to see that what her father is trying to do is infinitely more important than the inconvenience and hardships the rest of the family may put up with.

Anitra keeps things going, settles the arguments, handles the finances. Twice she herself, as they say, to avert a financial disaster, in some way that isn't quite made out, contrives to collect without delivering goods.

And in the end she succeeds. The symphony is finished—at the cost of Anitra's happiness. Now all this would make a pretty good story if it weren't muddled in the telling. But, unfortunately, it is. It's hard to read; and the nervousness of Miss Hurst's style seem to grow irritating.

Harpers publish it.

This Soldier of Fort Never Lacked Act

IF YOU like to read about the romantic lives of soldiers of fortune, you are practically certain to get a huge kick out of "The Iron Filibuster," by Col. Dean Ivan Lamb.

Here is a chap whose experiences—doings of Richard Harding Davis's hero—the adventures of children playing in the yard. For upwards of a quarter century he has been roaming about the world, successfully fighting fights that were not private and taking fun as he found it, and his book is a most entertaining and thrilling account of adventures.

He worked on the Panama Canal, drifted revolution in Colombia, where he blossomed as a machine gunner, fought on one of another in revolutions in all but one of turbulent Central American countries.

Then he became aviator for the Carranza Mexico and, as such, took part in the first aerial "dog-fights"—a singularly bloodless since the opposition aviator was a buddy of served in the British flying corps during the War, prospecting for gold in French Guiana, laid a railroad in the Amazonian jungle, part in a really exciting revolution in Brazil in a really funny one in Paraguay—well, a partial list, but it gives you an idea.

His life seems to have had an inexorable cycle of boom and depression. Most of revolutions paid well, and when he was Colonel Lamb had much fun. But invariably his money vanished before he'd have to go hunt up another war, all he seems to have worked extraordinary for his money. But it seems to have been it. It is published by Farrar and Rinehart.

Three Poems

THREE poems by Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow of former U. S. Ambassador Morrow and of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, whose boy was kidnapped and killed three years ago, are published in the current issue of The Monthly.

The first, entitled "Saint of the Lost," Anthony of Padua, patron saint of those whom a great loss has been visited.

It reads as follows:
Walking Elysian fields the saint forgot
The salt of human tears. What went he Grows faint and far; the most important
Cry of the heart falls cold; they need not Only Saint Anthony can never rest,
Searching the depths of what has slipped

So long as men pray he must be oppressed
So long as men lose he must labor on.
His face for ever turned from Paradise
Lest he should miss that single sparrow
He finds the strayed sheep with his faithful
He holds in sight the lonely prodigal;
Saint of the lost who cannot sleep nor stay
While one child wanders from his mother

The following is "Hostage":
He who has given
A hostage knows
All ways of dying
Terror shows:
He feels the cord
About his throat.
The knife blade striking
Through his coat,
Against his breast
Bright bullet spits;
He falls forgotten
In a pit.

Slowly he starves;
Swiftly a wave
Carries his body
To the grave.
All this is fought
To waking when
He dreams the hostage
Safe again.

Last is "Asphodel":
We saw it first together,
Pale plume against the sky,
Flowering on fallen temples.
Where asphodel grows high,
We saw it first together,
And haply could not tell
How next in heavenly gardens
You would see asphodel.

We saw it first together,
Pale plume against the sky,
Flowering on fallen temples.
Where asphodel grows high,
We saw it first together,
And haply could not tell
How next in heavenly gardens
You would see asphodel.

Mrs. Morrow has previously published "The Painted Pig," a fairy-tale book, written, dedicated to her daughter, Constance.

ANOTHER book about what happened to Fawcett—who went into the jungles in search of traces of an ancient civilization has not been heard of for years—is coming. The name is "The Devil's Drum," the name and Tex Harding, who is dead, going roughneck," wrote it. Harding had definite proof that Fawcett and her companions were murdered. An earlier book of a search for Fawcett, Peter Fleming's "The Adventure," published by Scribners, has best-selling book for several months.

"New Deal" Marks Change-over From Scarcity To Plenty

THE ESSENCE of the peaceful revolution which has begun under Roosevelt is that it is a new deal and not a free-for-all. The game is big and the stakes are as high as ever have been recorded in our history, but it is a gentlemanly game and none of the cards is marked.

In this way one of the most interesting and valuable of the spring books, "The New Dealers"—written by a gentleman who calls himself "The Unofficial Observer"—sums up the events of the last year.

The book is blunt in calling what is going on in Washington a revolution. But it is equally emphatic in saying that President Roosevelt is not responsible for it.

This revolution, it says, would have come without him, and it will go on if he "should cease to be its greatest advertisement."

For what is happening, it says, is simply this: We are making our transition from an age of scarcity to an age of plenty, and the process is as inevitable and as inescapable as the tides.

What Roosevelt has done is to make the change a peaceable one.

Going on from this viewpoint, the author discusses Mr. Roosevelt and his associates with complete frankness.

For the President himself the book has the highest praise. He has given, it says, hope, action, and national self-respect, at a time when we needed all three imperatively.

By so doing, he saved his country from chaos and violence.

The book's analyses of such men as Johnson, Tugwell, Wallace, Ickes, and the rest, are amazingly vivid and forthright.

All in all, it is a remarkably readable and stimulating piece of work—the best review of the new deal that has yet appeared.

THE WAY TO PERSONALITY.....

Health, Appearance, Manners—These Spell Personality

Expressive Voice, Too, Is Essential As Attribute of The "Ideal Woman"

Contrasts Enliven Spring Ensembles

"Ruth Chatterton is man's feminine ideal

—and a charming example of personality."

Red, navy and white striped linen cuffs, scarf and gloves add smartness to Molyneux's spring ensemble in a decorative, woven light-weight woolen.

Alix Barton's pinafore ensemble has a sleeveless dress of soft black moire and guimpe top of fine black lace in modernistic design.

By Francis Robinson-Duff

THE QUALITY which most quickly attracts a man to one of the opposite sex is an alluring personality. Therefore, a woman trying to cultivate qualities of charm must first of all brush up on the fundamentals of these elusive will-o'-the-wisps.

Appearance, health, speaking voice and manners are some of the tangible items with which she must deal firmly to begin with.

Just as a woman is more likely to be drawn to a healthy man than a sickly one, so does a woman become more attractive to men when she gives that fine sense of physical well-being which, whether she is pretty or not, creates the illusion of beauty.

It is odd that while standards of feminine good looks change superficially from generation to generation and from country to country, the chief essentials remain the same.

Men of every land and every time have admired an erect carriage; bright, intelligent eyes, soft, glowing skin, white teeth, a body that is neither too thin nor too burdened with fat; a voice that is soft, full of expression and sincere.

And while mentally there have also been changes in standards, in the main men prefer the same styles in feminine minds to-day that they did a thousand years ago. That is to say, they adore gentleness, sympathy and warm kindness.

A man wants to know that the woman of his choice would not let him down, that she would defend him even when he was in the wrong, fight for him if necessary.

Men pay less attention to fashion than most women think. That is, your young man does not usually know whether the gown you are wearing is last year's or this. Yet if it were not becoming and if he did not see the eyes of other men in restaurant or theatre veering admiringly in your direction, he would, mightily soon discover that something was wrong with your way of dressing.

And if you embarrassed him by not observing the usages of good breeding, he would quickly find some other girl to take out.

It is the same with makeup. Ask almost any man whether he thinks women should use rouge and mascara. Ten chances to one, he will say that what he likes is naturalness.

Yet leave off your rouge and lipstick for an evening. Then watch his puzzled glance as he vainly tries to make out what has transformed you from an exciting woman into a dull one.

And speaking of artifices, no matter how self-sufficient you are, do not be afraid to cling! Men like it and you will like it, too, once you have experienced the thrilling satisfaction of being cared for and protected.

REMEMBER, TOO, in cultivating this personality that will fit you for love, not to be ashamed to show your feelings.

A man does not want a woman to be too eager and yet he soon turns from her if his wooing never meets with honest, unafraid response. The happy half-way mark between too great ardor and too little must be fixed by the woman herself. Poise, tact and sincerity must guide her.

A charming example of the woman whose personality attracts men is Ruth Chatterton. This intelligent actress fulfills in mind, manner and appearance the average man's ideal of femininity.

That this is true is proved by the court which surrounds her wherever she goes.

Dual Purpose Piece Is Ingenious New Wrinkle to Save Space

By MARIAN YOUNG

TWO-TIMING is admirable—in furniture. The new double and triple utility pieces strike a practical note in home furnishings.

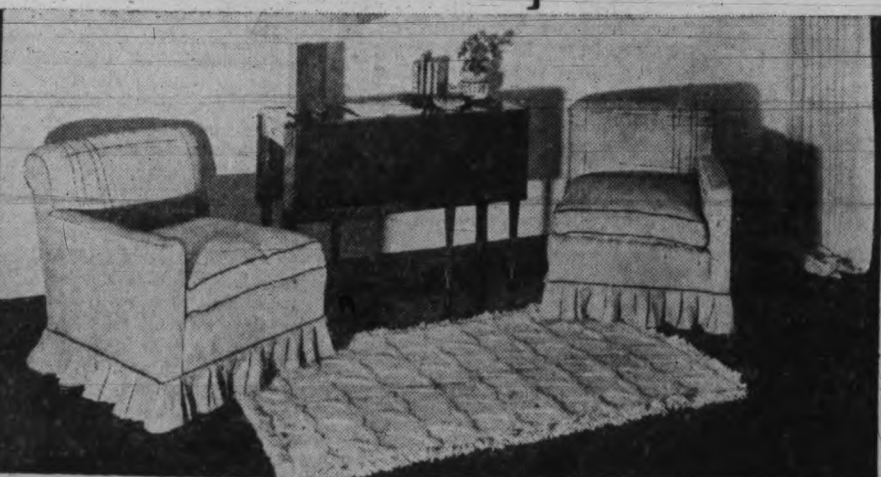

For the hostess who has little space at, fortunately, lots of company, here is a new divan which comes apart to make three separate chairs. Two of the chairs have arms on opposite sides, making them perfect for reading. The centre piece is armless and can be drawn up in front of your desk to make a comfortable writing chair. Put together, you have aavenport.

New bedside utility cabinets serve three purposes. They are made with open compartments on the two lower shelves and a couple of drawers at the top. You use the little open cubby holes for your shoes and the drawers for handkerchiefs, nightgowns and the like.

The flat top itself is sturdy enough to hold a reading lamp, an ash tray and your bedtime reading matter.

TRIPLE UTILITY PIECE

ALSO introduced last fall is a new three-in-one piece of furniture which looks like three narrow chests of drawers. They fit together along the wall of an apartment living-room. The piece on the right end opens up to show rows and rows of bookshelves. The one on the left reveals three or four drawers. The centre piece has a split panel across the front. The top half of the panel drops down and then you have a writing desk. You can use them together, lacking space, use them separately.

(From R. H. Macy.)

Two handsome club chairs in bright yellow with brown binding can be shoved together to make a love seat. If the matching third chair—armless—is set in between them, you have a divan. The lamp on the eighteenth century table adds just the right modern touch.

Quarter couches fit together to make a circular divan. They are handsome love seats either side of a fireplace when used separately. One has an arm on the right side, one left. A particularly lovely pair of these circular quarter couches comes in pale green velour.

A chaise longue that looks like an armchair at one end is appropriate for either bedrooms or library. It appears to be merely an elongated easy chair. And beautiful it is, with a short arm on one side and the other arm extending all the way to the foot.

Right in the double utility mood is a desk table that is plain and simple enough to be used as a luncheon table in the small apartment. It has a thick glass top, making it ideal for writing purposes. Put a pad and a linen cloth over the glass and there you are—all set for lunch.

ONE-LEGGED BRIDGE TABLE

A BRIDGE table that is heavy and solid, with one large leg instead of four little wobbly ones, stays up all the time. Place it in one corner of a large living-room, with its chairs grouped close to it, and besides being decorative, it is always ready when you want to play cards or serve refreshments.

There is a beautiful eighteenth century library table (shown between

FORMAL afternoon ensembles for early spring feature navy blue or black coats with vivid color notes in the guise of guimpe or sleeves of a totally different fabric. The return of the pinafore dress affords a number of ideas and transformations to make one ensemble look different and dress it up more or less as the occasion demands.

Chanel has a number of these in her present collection which are undoubtedly very youthful. A three-quarter length coat with a skirt sporting straps over the shoulders, besides a halter neckline such as was used for evening dresses a few seasons ago, is shown with a long-sleeved blouse of white silk with broad red and blue sash stripes. The stripes are worked horizontally for the bodice part and on the bias with a chevron effect for the sleeves. A soft bow the two chairs in the picture) that is grand for an apartment. You can use it as a regular living-room table and, by putting up the side pieces, as a dinner table. Use the nice little end drawer for silver.

A large, round table (about four feet in diameter) can be used as an ordinary library table. And also for a tea table if you are a hostess who gives large parties. It is just the right height so that a table lamp placed on it will shed rays of light on the book held by a person sitting in a club chair near the table itself. And it is large enough to hold dozens of teacups and many platters of sandwiches and cakes.

By all means investigate the two-timing furniture trends and see for yourself how useful and decorative these new pieces can be.

scarf finishes the neckline and the sleeves of the jacket are just short enough to show the cuffs of the blouse. All these are just seemingly unimportant details, but they do count and this season's mode is, after all, one of infinite detail.

MOLYNEUX'S collection also features the blue or black ensemble with coat of varying length enlivened by such original detail as deep navy, scarlet and white striped cuffs and scarf tucked into the high-closing neckline, with gloves to match. The idea of using the stripes diagonally makes the general effect that much more original, enhanced by gloves of the same striped fabric. A paillasson straw, worn square over the eyes and simply trimmed with a navy grosgrain ribbon gives an ensemble a decided 1934 look.

Formal afternoon ensembles to be worn later on in the season will show just as much fantasy. So far, it seems as though the printed dress in vivid and variegated colors worn under a black or plain coat will predominate. These ensembles, or rather the coats that cover these dresses, are distinctly different from former years. They button on the side and show generous expanses of the printed dress underneath. They have trick sleeves too that are slashed or shortened to show glimpses of the print and the general impression is very gay yet discreet.

MADELEINE VIONNET still clings to the ensemble composed of a black or blue coat worn over a pastel colored frock. She also shows some all-black ensembles completed by vivid colored scarfs that are threaded in the belt at the back and brought over the shoulder, tying in a loose bow at the side and worn over the coat. This artist has also concentrated on hibs and tuckers as a trimming for her intricately-cut afternoon dresses of black crepe satin. These jabot bibs are made of vivid chiffon velvet and are very frilly in appearance, or again of bright plain or striped taffetas.

One of Vionnet's most startling afternoon ensembles features a coral pink jacket and corsete skirt worn with a sleeveless asphire blue vest blouse—an unusual combination but essentially artistic.

MADELEINE VIONNET still clings to the ensemble composed of a

Goodasa Spring Tonic, This Gelatin Salad of Carrot and Cabbage

LONG ABOUT this time of year, the homemaker is ready to throw up her hands in despair. No one will eat. The roast that was such a favorite dish with the entire family in December goes begging in April. And the stew—well, just try and get anyone, even Dad with his hearty appetite, to touch a bit of it. So something has to be done to preserve both peace and health in the family. Green vegetables and fresh, crisp salads are the perfect substitutes for the heartier recipes of mid-winter. Try serving vegetable plates for dinner at least twice a week. And for luncheon, varying the old cornishly in December goes begging in April. And the stew—well, just try and get anyone, even Dad with his hearty appetite, to touch a bit of it. So something has to be done to preserve both peace and health in the family. Green vegetables and fresh, crisp

A CARROT AND cabbage salad in gelatin is a regular spring tonic. Here's the way to make it:

Dissolve one package of lemon flavored gelatin in one pint of warm water. Add two tablespoons of vinegar and one teaspoon of salt and set it in the ice box. When the mixture is slightly thickened, fold in one cup of raw grated carrots and one cup of finely shredded cabbage.

When it is firm, unmold on a platter covered with crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise. This recipe serves six persons.

Tents and Swimming Put In Early Appearance

Fine Weather Gets Youngsters Excited and Willie Has to Rack His Brains to Make Tent But It Proves More Attractive Than Proper Canvas One Across the Street; Sleeping Out Not Very Appealing

By WILLIE WINKLE

All that fine weather got a lot of the kids around our neighborhood thinking of camping and swimming and all that. I guess some of our mothers went a little greyer as they wondered if we'd be diving in the salt water and catching cold. And then everybody wanted a tent in the back yard and to start sleeping out. I'll bet there'll be a big demand for second-hand tents now.

Across the street they put up a real tent. They got a floor and side-boards and it was all done nice and slick by a real carpenter and when the warm days came they pestered their dad until he had their tent put up. It's a proper canvas tent and it will keep the rain out. The kids were keen to sleep out but when the rain came they got cold feet and weren't so fussy. There ain't much fun getting up on a wet morning in the summer time out in a tent so there would be a whole lot less fun getting up this time of the year with the rain coming down. Imagine how clammy your clothes would feel.

I know there are some people who sleep out on sleeping porches and say it's great stuff. There was a woman come to our place and she was always bragging about how well she was just 'cause she slept out on the porch all year 'round.

"Why, I haven't had a cold since I've been sleeping outside," she told my mother many times.

Then one day she came around and her nose looked like a lighthouse, red and it must have had a loose washer in it 'cause it was running and she had to keep using her hanky. We were all surprised and asked her how it happened.

"Have you quit sleeping out on the porch?" my mother asked.

"No," she says, but she had an alibi. "I got this cold at a bridge party. It was so hot in the house they opened a window and I had to sit near it and the draft gave me a cold."

The next day her husband told my dad that his wife was sleeping indoors now.

SISTERS' DESIRE

Well, anyhow, when Betty and the Babe saw the kids across the street had a tent, 'course they wanted one. Well, we didn't have one but that don't make no difference to my sisters.

"Aw, can't you make us one?" says Betty to me.

"I haven't got time," I says.

"He don't know how to make one, he ain't that smart," says Babe.

"Ain't I? I'll show you," I says.

I forgot myself that time. Babe just kidded me into that, but once I made the break I just had to go ahead.

I scouted about in the cellar and found a lot of sacking that we had used for a shelter when we camped on the beach. I got it out and got some long pieces my dad used for those Kentucky Wonder beans that almost grow up to the moon, and I got the old apple tree to help me out. Well, I didn't actually get a tent made, that is one of those real canvas ones, but I made one much bigger and had it flat on the top so you don't bump your head on the sides and had one end open so you could walk in and out without breaking your back.

You may not believe it, but the kids from across the road

SUMMER FROCKS ARE POPULAR AGAIN

This picture was taken in Florida and shows two little girls all dressed up in their summer frocks. The photographers thought it was wonderful to see children dressed that way at this time of the year, even in the southland. But he could have seen the same thing right in Victoria. During the fine spell in March and the Easter holidays many children were dressed like the little girls in the picture.

came over and played in our tent and thought it was better than theirs. We had more room in ours and had all the stuff out of the playhouse and the girls were pretending cooking and everything else.

"Who can't make a tent?" I says to Babe.

"Aw, you're a swell big brother," she says, and gives me a kiss. "You can do anything. There ain't no other girls around got a good brother like you."

Well, you couldn't blame a guy for feeling a bit proud.

"Don't forget me then when you have a tea party," I told them all, and they sure didn't. I got in on some of the sandwiches, not many, but still I got some.

But I got something better. Mother came out and gave me 50 cents. I was surprised, you can bet, and I asked her why the tip, and she says:

"If you hadn't built that tent I don't know what I would have done. Betty wanted to go swimming at Sandy Beach and she wouldn't take 'no' for an answer, and of course Babe was playing the life out of me, too. I hope the tent will do them for awhile, and I won't have to keep stopping them from going swimming. It's too early for that just yet."

"Well, mother, for four-bits I'll build you anything," I told her.

I'll have to get Betty to think up some more things she wants to do and see if I can't make money making things to keep her home.

DID YOU KNOW—?

Height of forehead is no sign of superior intelligence; scientists find that Eskimos of low intelligence are among the highest-browed people in the world.

The Malay Peninsula has many extremes in size among its animal life; insects range from thirteen inches in length to others which are so small they cannot be seen by the naked eye, and animals range from the elephant to the smallest known animal, a tiny variety of bat.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Brave Fight

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Uncle Wiggily, his flying fish, named Finny, Mrs. Squeak, the mouse lady and the turtle were hiding behind a bush in the rainy woods, waiting for the Fox and Bob Cat to come up to them. The rabbit, the fish and the mouse were all on the turtle's back, for he was pretending to be a taxi and taking Mrs. Mouse home with her big basket of groceries she had bought for her children.

Uncle Wiggily and Mrs. Squeak didn't know the Bad Chaps were coming after them until Finny flew along through the rain to tell them. And then, when they were wondering how, on the back of the slow poke turtle, they could escape the turtle said:

"Make mud balls and shoot the Bad Chaps!"

"That is something I have never done," said Uncle Wiggily as he and his friends on the back of the turtle were hiding behind a bush and waiting for the Fox and the Bob Cat to come slinking along. "Never!"

"Do you mean you have never made mud balls or that you have never shot any Bad Chaps?" asked the turtle.

"Well, of course, I have made mud balls," said the bunny gentleman. "I would not be telling the truth if I said I never had. As a matter of fact, when I was a young rabbit I was one of the best makers of mud balls in all Woodland. I made beautiful, soft, mushy mud balls."

"Then there is no reason why you can't make some now, is there?" asked the turtle. "Or at least throw them."

"No," said Uncle Wiggily, listening with both his long ears to learn whether or not the Bad Chaps were getting closer. "And as another matter of fact I have shot Bad

POOR PAT

"Oh, yes, sorr," said the tardy Irishman to his boss, "the alarm clock ye give me went off all right, but the trouble was that it went off while I was asleep."

The hen that chased poor Windy was quite furious, and all because the lad had tried to take eggs from a nest up in the hay.

"Somebody help me," Windy cried. "She'll peck big holes right in my side. Gee, I can't understand why she is acting up this way."

"Aw, I can," Dotty said. "You simply didn't use your head when you were getting eggs. You should have left that nest alone."

"Without those eggs, you had a batch. You see, they are about to hatch. That's why the mother hen feels that they are her very own."

Just then the farmer cried, "Cluck, cluck!" To Windy this brought real good luck. The mad old hen stopped chasing him and went back to her nest.

The farmer then said, "She's trained well, as you can very easily tell." "Oh, thank you," answered Windy. "Now I'll get a chance to rest."

He flopped down in a shady spot and Goldy said, "As like as not, you shortly will be snoring. Guess I'll ramble 'round some more."

"'Twill be no fun, just standing here. You'll bother all of us, I fear. I really have to hold my ears, when I hear people snore."

And then she scampered out of sight. "I hope that she will be all right," said Copy, as he watched her run. "I want no cause for fear."

"Don't worry," said the farmer. "She is just as safe as she can be. 'It won't be very long, I'm sure, until she'll come back here."

Into a large field Dotty went, and there a half an hour was spent, just playing 'round. Then, suddenly, she heard a strange "Hello."

She looked around and then she saw a scarecrow, and was filled with awe, when it shook hands and said, "Please stay and play with me. Don't go."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

FORTUNATELY for the city of Montreal, the 110-mile-an-hour wind recorded there was only a single gust. A steady wind at that speed would have wrecked the city. On top of Mt. Washington, in New Hampshire, velocities of 186 miles have been registered.

Chaps, but never with mud balls."

"With what, then?" asked Finny the flying fish.

"With a pop gun," said the rabbit gentleman. "I'll never forget how, once upon a time, when my little rabbit boy, Buster, received a pop gun for Christmas and the Wolf tried to get in, I took Buster's gun and popped him on the nose."

"Oh, my goodness!" screamed Mrs. Squeak, the mouse lady. "You don't mean to say you shot your own little rabbit boy?"

"No, of course I didn't," laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I shot the Wolf."

"Well, if you will now do as I tell you," said the turtle, "you shall shoot the Fox and Bob Cat, but with mud balls instead of a pop gun. The Bad Chaps will soon be here. The fight will soon start. So you had all better get off my back."

"Oh, are you going to fight?" asked Mrs. Squeak.

"No, but I am going to make the mud balls for Uncle Wiggily to throw at the Bad Chaps," was the answer. "To make mud balls I must churn around and dance in the mud and water and I might splash a lot on you. So you had better get off my back for the time being. You can stand under Uncle Wiggily's umbrella until I get the balls made."

"I don't need to get under the umbrella," said Finny. "I love to fly around in the rain. I'll be a sort of scout. I'll fly down through the woods and let you know when the Bad Chaps are near enough to fight."

"A good idea," said the turtle. So while Uncle Wiggily held his umbrella over the mouse lady and while Finny went off to scout, the turtle churned around in a puddle and made a lovely lot of soft squishy, squishy mud balls, which he piled up near the bush behind which Uncle Wiggily and Miss Mouse were hiding.

The turtle rolled gobs of mud in his feet to make the balls and at last he said he thought he had made enough. Just then back flew Finny to say: "Here they come!"

"You hold my umbrella, Mrs. Squeak," whispered Uncle Wiggily. "Keep yourself dry. I must fight!"

Just then, slinking along through the bushes came the Fox and the Bob Cat. They were sniffing and snuffing in the rain. The Bob Cat said to the Fox:

"There's Uncle Wiggily behind that bush!"

"I see him!" snarled the Fox. "Oh, I see him plainly!"

"Well, you won't see me after this!" cried the brave rabbit. With that he threw a mud ball and shouted, "There is mud in your eye!"

And, truly, it was so, for the mud ball the bunny threw plastered itself over both eyes of the Fox. "And here's mud in your eye!" shouted the rabbit, throwing another ball. This whammed the Bob Cat in his eyes. So neither of the Bad Chaps could see a thing and then Uncle Wiggily threw more mud balls at them until they were glad enough to run away, banging

A DOG TELLS A STORY

I don't suppose many of my young readers believe that puppy dog can tell a story. You know a dog can show his pleasure by wagging his tail and he will actually jump for joy. Mr. A. T. Anderson says a dog can tell a story, and he it is:

"I am just an ordinary brown dog named 'Pup.' I live in a home where everybody is kind to me and I am just as happy here as any dog could wish to be. There are a number of children in the home and we have many good times together. I am just as ready to help with the work as I am with the play. When any of the children are sent for wood I accompany them, take a stick in my strong jaws, carry it into the house and lay it on the floor beside the stove."

"Two of the children are named John and Lizzie. Although I am very fond of all the children, I love these two most, Lizzie being my favorite. I call her my 'little mistress.' She is a very kind-hearted girl, and I do not know how I would get along without her. She says she is never afraid of anything when I am along with her."

"One of these cold nights I, as usual, was at the barn with John helping all I could with the chores. It appears that when the work was finished, John did not notice that I left the barn at the same time that he did. It was well for me, as you will soon learn, that he did not notice it, for it was because he turned later to find me that was the means of saving my life."

"As I said before, it was a very cold night. In order to prevent the well from freezing over, a sack had been thrown across the mouth of it. After John had gone into the house I began to look for a comfortable place for the night. Soon I saw this sack and thought to myself, 'This will make a nice warm place for me.' Imagine my surprise when no sooner had I stepped on the sack than, quick as a flash, I went flying downwards and dashed into the icy waters. I was almost overcome with fright and fear. In a few seconds I recovered my presence of mind, and began to think of some way to get out of the well. I found that by standing on my hind legs that I could just get my head above water. I also discovered that this was about all that I could do, and that unless help came from some other source but myself, I must perish. How cold it was! I could feel myself becoming numb and my senses gradually leaving me."

"Just at the moment when I was about to give up, I heard John running past the well on the way to the barn to look for me. The family was getting ready for bed when I was thought of and was to be brought into the house for the night. 'If I can only make him hear me,' I thought, 'he will soon get out of here.' On his way back to the house he noticed that the sack was gone, so he came and looked down the well and saw me in my sad position. Quickly he ran to the house and gave the alarm, then came racing back with Lizzie in hot pursuit. John ran and got the ladder, put it down into the well and came right down to where I was. Both he and my little mistress were clad only in their night clothes, for there was no time to lose, and their one ruling thought was to save my life."

"As soon as John had reached me, he took a firm hold up me and began to climb the ladder. No sooner had he done so than the rung broke and back into the cold waters we were plunged. Again he began to climb and this time the ladder did not give way. As soon as he had got near the top with his heavy bundle of dog, Lizzie reached down as far as she could, took hold of one of my forepaws and drew me safely to the top. I was indeed glad to be out of those icy waters and, cold as I was, I felt that I must in some way show my thankful I was to them, so I licked the hand of my little mistress."

"They next got me into the house as quickly as possible where a good fire was in readiness; for the father had seen it that a warm fire was brightly burning. There I was rubbed dry and given warm drinks and soon I felt much better. I thought, 'What a blessing it is to be living with people so good and kind.' I never could have got out of that well by my own efforts, but help came from above and I was saved. Do you wonder that my great aim in life is to serve faithfully the kind-hearted people with whom it is my good fortune to be living?"

"But this experience taught me a great lesson. I learned that many innocent-looking things and places have some hidden danger lurking beneath them. Ever after, whenever I was inclined to be thoughtless or careless, I could see in very plain letters before me the word 'BEWARE.'"

THE SHIP OF THE DESERT

Nature has equipped the camel for desert work. He broad pads on his feet which allow him to walk upon the sand as easily as a boy with snowshoes walks on the snow. Oases may be miles apart but the camel can browse upon dwarf thorn bushes which grow commonly in the desert.

A handful of dates will satisfy his hunger. But most remarkable of all, the camel actually "eats" his own hump. The hump consists almost wholly of fat. At the beginning of a journey, it will be large and firm. Each day that the camel fails to get proper food in the desert, his body absorbs energy from the hump to make up the difference. At the end of a long journey the hump will be flabby and almost invisible but it plumps up again when the camel can indulge in large quantities of food and water.

The camel has four stomachs through which his food passes. One of these is lined with cells which he can open or close will. When he drinks, he takes more water than he actually needs and stores the surplus in these cells. He can go several days without another drink by opening one or two of the cells when he is thirsty.

A horse might suffocate in a sand storm but the camel closes his nostrils and wait quietly for the storm to pass.

Camels are often obstinate, sometimes vicious and uncomfortable to ride on, but in the desert they are invaluable as beasts of burden and as a practical means of transportation.

into trees, bushes and rocks as they did so.

The fight was over. Uncle Wiggily had won. Then, the rain stopped and the turtle took them all home and everything was just fine. And if the kitchen faucet will give the radio a drink of ink out of the soup spoon I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily in a shower.

NIGHT DRIVING NO GREAT PROBLEM TO ALL WHO USE LIGHTS PROPERLY

MORE of us will enjoy night driving as well as we do motoring by day once we use our headlights as the designers intended, once we look after them as closely as we do the engine, and once the various states crack down on motorists driving cars with poorly focused, glaring beams.

The headlights on three-fourths of the cars in use today provide efficient illumination, if they are maintained and used properly, says R. N. Falge, headlighting research engineer.

Fact is, only a very low percentage of drivers watch their lights as they do the rest of the car, and these actually prefer driving by night to motoring through heavier traffic by day, Falge says.

Present laws in many states are based on the single beam headlighting arrangement of some fifteen years ago, and these laws required drivers to keep their light properly focused, besides keeping the bulbs down to a comparatively low candle power.

NEW TYPES IN USE

BUT THE double beam headlight long has taken the place of the single beam, and lately has come the "pre-focused" headlight with a "meeting beam" arrangement that permits a driver to avoid glare on his left while retaining full visibility on his right.

With this new type of headlighting, the throw of a switch at the steering wheel casts the left beam downward. This is standard equipment on nearly all makes of cars today.

But, as close to the ideal as this arrangement can be, it is of no value if the motorist fails to throw that switch when another car approaches, Falge insists.

Neither is it of any use while you are rounding a curve to the right or approaching an upward incline.

Furthermore, while you are deprived of the proper lighting to your right, rounding that curve, or far enough ahead nearing the hill, the approaching driver gets your lights into his eyes, no matter how you might try to avoid this.

YOU CANNOT ALWAYS HELP

YOUR politeness goes amiss, too, whenever you hit a bump, or when you have passengers in back, and another motorist approaches. This is especially true in the case of the lighter cars.

These still are problems for headlighting engineers to solve.

Generally, however, says Falge, the two-beam system and the newer "meeting beam" type of headlights can provide safe and comfortable driving at night, if every driver would throw that switch every time another motorist approaches.

Finally, he can assure good vision for himself by seeing that the lenses are clear and the bulbs fully effective. And by keeping the windshield clean. Dust on the windshield accentuates glare.

doctor to the condition, so that he may locate the infection, if possible.

IN THE vast majority of cases, fever means infection. Sometimes it is just a small spot in a tonsil or a sinus; it may, however, be tuberculosis or malaria.

The counting of pulse changes is another important determination made by doctors, and also is dependent on machinery. It requires the use of a watch which registers the passage of time second by second.

The ordinary pulse beat is from seventy-two to eighty-two a minute. Slight variations in pulse rate are not important.

Usually in the presence of fever the pulse rate is more rapid. It is also fast when there is over-activity of the thyroid gland. A rapid beat of the heart is called tachycardia.

In other instances, for example, in the presence of a fracture of the skull or other causes of pressure on the brain, the pulse rate may be slow. This is called bradycardia.

In some conditions which affect the heart, the pulse beat becomes exceedingly irregular, since the beat of the pulse is a reflection of the beat of the heart.

The fever thermometer—the doctor's first aid.

Fever Thermometer First Aid Of Doctor in Diagnosing Case

This is the first of five articles by Dr. Morris Fishbein, in which he tells "How Your Doctor Works."

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

DOCTORS 2,000 years ago did all their medical diagnosis with their eyes, hands, ears, nose and even their sense of taste. Gradually, however, instruments were developed to aid these senses.

The doctor of to-day is surrounded by a vast amount of machinery which is used in diagnosing and treating disease. The instrument with which we are most acquainted is the clinical thermometer.

The first thermometer for measuring changes in temperature of the human body, as occurs when there is a fever, probably was developed by an Italian named Santorini, in the fifteenth century. He filled a glass tube with an expandable liquid which served to register changes in temperature.

THIS same Santorini also weighed the body to find out whether it really was absorbing the food eaten at a meal.

It took a long time after development of this first thermometer in the sixteenth century before final development of the small fever thermometers which are used to-day. They were perfected during the last fifty years.

Now you can have in your home a small fever thermometer which will register, in anywhere from one-half to two minutes, the changes that take place in temperature of the body.

Fever is a symptom that demands medical attention. Whenever the temperature rises above 98.6 degrees there is a considerable time, whenever there is a rise in the temperature of the body evening after evening, you should call the attention of your

SMALL SLAM IS POOR BID

Cards Do Not "Sit" Right for Six-odd Contract, Yet Proper Squeeze Play Would Make It

By WM. E. MCKENNEY

I PRESUME that the greatest pleasure in bridge is derived from post-mortems after a tournament. "If West had the king," or "If I had taken the diamond finesse"—these and many others are subjects of great length and discussion in tournament play.

Here was an interesting post-mortem after two clubs in two spades as the only advantage in his playing the contract at no trump is in the king of diamonds being led up to.

However, after two no trump bid by South, North is justified in going to three. Six-odd can be made on the hand with the following play:

THE PLAY
West opens the seven of hearts, which is won in dummy with the nine. The spade suit then is started, declarer cashing the ace, king, queen, and then playing a small spade. He discards two clubs from dummy, while East lets go two diamonds.

When West wins the fourth spade with the jack, he leads the jack of clubs, which the declarer wins with the ace. Declarer then cashes the six of spades, West letting go a heart, and the three of diamonds is discarded from dummy. East drops the nine of clubs.

The queen of hearts is played next, West covers with the king, and declarer wins the trick in dummy with the ace. The deuce of hearts is returned from dummy and East is squeezed.

If he lets go a club, all clubs in dummy are good, while if he drops a diamond the declarer will win three diamond tricks.

While six-odd is made, it would not be a sound bid.

Chemist Calms Civilian Fears Of Poison Gas Menace in War

CIVILIANS wearing gas masks huddled together in cellars below the ground while airplanes rained death—that was the picture of a "gas raid" often painted in descriptions of future warfare.

The horrors of the situation, it was said, knew no bounds—even if you bolted for the deepest imaginable vault, gas would leak downward and get you in the end.

Then Dr. Freeth, the distinguished chemist, put in a word on the subject. There is nothing about diving into the earth in his advice, not a word about gas masks even. He says that:

"If you found yourself in a gas raid and could keep your head sufficiently to close your windows, put out your fire and wait until the properly constituted authority had dispersed the gas, you would be reasonably safe."

"If you had no duty to perform and simply got into a hot bath, smoked a pipe and laughed, you would be practically completely safe. Nothing would happen unless the enemy scored a direct hit on you."

LIMIT TO THE PERILS

DR. FREETH was speaking to the City of London Branch of the League of Nations Union at Cordwainers Hall. Obviously, he pointed out, gas had its perils—but as far as war was concerned its scope was extraordinarily limited.

This was because, mustard gas is the only effective gas for military purposes, and defensive measures have now brought its value to an end. In warfare it is impossible to use the most deadly gases.

"Take a narrow street like Bond Street during the crowded hours of the day," he said. "There is a very large quantity of really poisonous gas given off by buses and cars. Why are there no casualties? The answer is simple—because of the ventilating powers of the atmosphere."

"If you let loose carbon monoxide in a very short space of time it would be knocked about and dispersed by the molecules of the air which have, for particular purposes, the same molecular weight. That is why people

Can Film Stars Lead a Normal Life?

NO
Says Jeanette
MacDonald

Irene Dunne: "Socially, I am generally Mrs. Griffin, not Irene Dunne."

One Actress Lives Miles from Husband, the Other Bemoans the Lack of Privacy and Time, Yet Both are Happy with Hollywood Life

IN HOLLYWOOD, torn by jealousies and competition, politics and favoritism, quarrels and divorce—in this cinema capital of the world—is it possible for a movie star to lead what the rest of us call a normal life? Irene Dunne says yes. Jeanette MacDonald says no. Irene is married. Jeanette has been engaged for more than two years. They have written their sides of the case for NEA Service and this paper.

By IRENE DUNNE

CERTAINLY it's normal to have a home and husband, and quite usual these days to combine them with a career.

When I leave for the studio in the morning, I go to business exactly as if I were a stenographer, or a lawyer. A stenographer often works overtime. A lawyer burns midnight electricity preparing briefs and I expect the lawyer and the stenographer both do just as I do when they're kept late—telephone home not to wait dinner.

HOUSE IS WELL-RUN

On the lot I'm Irene Dunne. At home I'm Mrs. Frank Griffin. My house is well-run, if I do say it as I shouldn't. My servants are competent and they stay with me. It's not necessary for a woman to care personally for every detail of her household unless she has to. But I keep as sharp watch over my house as I do over my business.

My husband is a doctor and his practice is in New York City. That creates a slight problem right off. To solve it, I go east between pictures and Frank comes to the Coast on frequent trips when I'm working. The distance really isn't so great—not in an airplane, anyway. We're together a good deal more than, say, a traveling salesman and his wife. Also, and this really is important, we are fonder of each other to-day than the day we were married.

AVERAGE SOCIAL LIFE

Socially, I am generally Mrs. Griffin, not Irene Dunne. I go out no oftener than the average home woman. I wear the same kind of clothes she does (there's nothing I dislike more than conspicuous or extreme styles), and eat the same kind of food (thank goodness I don't have to diet!). Doesn't that sound like a normal life? It's a very happy one, too.

By JEANETTE MACDONALD

A MOTION picture star has no time for a life or even a love of her own. The abnormality of existence begins at dawn when you have to put on heavy make-up to wear in broad daylight. It ends only when your health setting-up exercises and bedtime beauty treatments are over and you have carefully arranged yourself in the painfully correct sleeping position that is supposed to promote good posture.

The whole day is one long strain—retakes, waits, crises. Half the time they shoot again at night so that if you have made a romantic engagement for that evening, it's just too bad.

ALWAYS ON PARADE

If you go to the theatre, you don't relax like everybody else because you're speculating about the kind of picture the play would make and what you would be like in the leading role. You are always on parade, too—a public character who has to maintain her public's illusions.

Imagine going abroad and working so hard that you have no time to shop in the Rue de la Paix! Yet that's what happens to me. I ask you, is that leading a normal life? Instead of seeing points of interest, I become one.

HAS NO PRIVACY

Privacy doesn't exist for me. Nor for any of us. A lover's quarrel or a domestic spat becomes a free-for-all with the world taking sides. I'll wager there have actually been Hollywood divorces just because the participants, while quite ready to kiss and make up, were afraid to do it for fear of disappointing their adherents.

Yet, having said all this, let me add that mine is a swell life and I wouldn't trade it for anybody's, however normal!

Jeanette MacDonald: "Privacy doesn't exist for me . . . you are always on parade."

In other words, between political Palestinian Arabs, led by the Mufti of Jerusalem, who claim they are going too far and too fast, and the World Union of Zionist Revisionists, who claim they are going too slowly and too timidly.

Following the late Lord Balfour's declaration that Britain intended to set up a "National Home for the Jews" in the British mandated territory of Palestine, work to this end

Jewish immigrants reclaim the waste and stony places of Palestine . . . and import modern farm machinery to replace the primitive methods of their Arabian neighbors.

"The immigration of Jews into Palestine is strictly controlled and regulated by the government in accordance with the country's capacity to absorb new arrivals. Every six months the Palestine administration decides how many Jewish workers may be admitted for the ensuing six months. In addition, persons with means, ranging from $1,250 demanded for a skilled craftsman to $5,000 for a so-called capitalist, are admitted. So are persons whose maintenance is assured. The figures for admission are submitted by the Jewish Agency, after we have made a careful investigation of the jobs available in agricultural and industrial fields.

NEW CAPITAL BROUGHT IN FROM UNITED STATES

AS A MATTER of fact, the administration seldom admits as many as are recommended. Sometimes the figure has dropped as low as 20 per cent.

"As the people with definite means, who are admitted, they have brought large amounts of new capital into Palestine. In the period from 1926 to 1932, 553 families alone brought in $10,000,000. Of these, 193 families were from the United States and brought in $3,500,000.

"The Arabs, who criticize England's policy, are largely in the so-called Istiglal party. They make statements which have no basis in fact. For instance, they say Jews are ousting Arabs. But the census shows that, while from 1922 to 1931, the Jewish population increased from 83,794 to 175,696, the non-Jewish population went up from 679,398 to 890,154. It is a noteworthy fact, too, that the Arab population increased especially in places where Jewish settlements showed the greatest progress, such as Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haifa."

was begun by setting up the Jewish Agency.

NUMBER OF SETTLERS CLOSELY WATCHED

LEDED BY some of the leading Jews of the world, this body was to be the one through which world Jewry would consult and plan with the mandatory power. It recognized that, as Palestine for centuries had been settled by Arabs, Great Britain could only allow in as many Jews as could find farms or jobs, without causing too much clash with the Moslems. The Jewish Agency saw to it that the rights kind of healthy, able, young settlers were admitted and also that they had sufficient funds with which to carry on the work they started out to do. Every year they submit figures, showing their estimates of how many Jews can be safely admitted.

The job has become immensely harder during the past year, owing to the big outflow of German Jews seeking new homes. Because of this situation, the Jewish Agency has been pressing the mandatory power to admit greater numbers to Palestine.

The work of the Jewish Agency was endorsed by the last Zionist Congress. Notwithstanding this, the World Union of Zionist Revisionists has seen fit to criticize it and even take independent action. The Revisionists have announced they are going to launch a petition direct against the policy of the British Government and, to this end have already sent letters to the American, British and other embassies in Paris. They demand inquiry, revision and redress. They claim that the British bureaucracy in Palestine is almost wholly dominated by a spirit tantamount to western anti-Semitism.

EFFECT OF IMMIGRATION FEARED BY ARABS

WHILE the Revisionists are attacking on this front, the Arabs, led by the Mufti of Jerusalem, are attacking on the other. They express the fear that too much Jewish immigration will endanger the interests of the Arabs.

The Jewish Agency seeks to strike a happy medium. What the others seek to accomplish by belligerency, it strives to attain by diplomacy. It has the advantage, not only of being the only agency recognized by the British Government, but also of being supported, in the main, by the vast French Jews, who have put up most of the money to further their dream. The Revisionists are fairly strong only in central and eastern Europe. Their action is resented by the Jewish Agency.

Speaking of the immigration problem, as regards Palestine, one of the leaders of the agency gave NEA Service the following statement:

The Case of Professor Eydoux and the Aspirin

Tourist or Spy? . . . Arrest of Paris Scholar in Italy Darkened International Skies

It was an unfortunate time that Professor Eydoux of Paris and his woman secretary chose for their tour of the Italian border. Unfortunately, because they were arrested and held as suspected spies just when much loose talk was being heard of growing enmity between France and Italy. This is another in a series of six modern spy stories which are appearing in The Victoria Daily Times

By MILTON BRONNER

LADEN with cameras, field glasses, maps and notebooks, the scholarly Professor Eydoux of the Paris Ecole Polytechnique and his comely secretary, Mademoiselle Georgette Bonnetfond, touring Italy on holiday, set out September 4, 1932, from their lodgings in Tarviso for an all-day motor jaunt.

They did not return that evening to their lodgings but the landlord thought little of it, since they sometimes stayed away overnight when they made trips in their hired automobile to nearby points. However, when another night came and another and another, and still they had not put in an appearance, the circumstances were reported to the authorities.

Immediately afterward, though nothing definite was heard of the pair, a thick, impenetrable silence settled down upon the whole affair. Nobody in Tarviso admitted to knowing anything about it or even asked any questions.

In Paris, the home of the professor and his secretary, the case was quite different. As time went on and they failed to return from their holiday, friends naturally wondered. Inquiries, however, drew blanks. The families of the missing man and woman preserved a mysterious reticence which, while it had in it an element of uneasiness, certainly did not seem to hold the agony of suspense that might have been expected.

THEIR ARREST REVEALED

A MONTH, two months passed. It was Christmas, then New Year's. And suddenly one day in mid-January the mystery was a mystery no longer. The Italian Government announced that Professor Eydoux and Mademoiselle Bonnetfond, without the knowledge of anybody in France save their families and the Foreign Office, had been held in an Italian prison since the day of their unexplained disappearance. They were charged, the announcement added, with being military spies.

At once Paris seethed with contradictory rumors concerning the pair. They had been caught sketching fortifications and would probably be put to death. No, not at all—the Italian Government had slipped up this time. The two could prove that they had only been making water color studies of the scenery and so they were about to be released.

ASPIRIN? WHAT OF THAT?

THE ONE item that all the hearers seemed to agree about was a bizarre report that a quantity of aspirin carried by either the professor or his secretary was to play a star role in the trial.

But what could aspirin have to do with spying, or even the charge of it? Nobody could imagine. Meantime, in Italy antagonism to the prisoners was growing. The relations between France and Italy were not too cordial anyway. Always since the World War there had been loose talk about the possibility of war between the two nations and now this Frenchman and his friend, employee or whatever, were accused of gathering information along a strategically

A seemingly innocent scene in which Italy saw a dread menace.

Rome on February 4, this odd angle of the case was immediately brought up.

Why, the prosecution asked, had the prisoners been carrying aspirin? In case they had headaches, of course the prisoners themselves answered with some asperity. The prosecutor called the attention of the court to the fact that aspirin was notoriously used in the preparation of invisible ink. Professor Eydoux and Mademoiselle Bonnetfond replied that they had never heard of such a use. They carried the drug as a medicine and used it for that purpose only, they said.

LONG UNDER-OBSERVATION

THE MAN and woman, it was revealed, had been under observation as they traveled about Italy and Yugoslavia for some weeks before their arrest and had been seen to take notes of certain localities, bridges and roads which the professor had then developed into what seemed to be reports and plans, later found in his possession.

The charges concluded with the declaration that he had confessed to having entered Italy to collect military information of interest to his country.

There was no mention of aspirin in this initial document but when the trial began before the Special Tribunal for the Defence of the Realm in on events observed on the road over the Simplon Pass, but he said there had been no secrets in his reports. Any intelligent man, he asserted, could have seen the same things and turned out the notes.

Mademoiselle Bonnetfond said she thought all the time the professor was collecting material for a book or a magazine or something. She had helped him with his work as she was paid to do but she had not even known that he was sending reports back to Paris, she insisted.

The frank manner of the prisoners made a good impression on the court and their Italian attorney argued to good effect that Eydoux had done no more than apply his expert knowledge to roads and railroads which could be seen by any casual traveler. Luckily, this attorney, Signor Emilio Tommasi, had helped draft the Penal Code under which his clients were being tried, and the court was obviously impressed when he declared that activities of Professor Eydoux were not under its provisions against securing secret information.

Nevertheless, the prosecutor said that Eydoux was sentenced to five years in prison and Mademoiselle Bonnetfond to ten. Eydoux got three years and Mademoiselle Bonnetfond three.

Each, however, was given a remission of three years of the sentence under an amnesty which had been granted to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. Mussolini, jubilant over the event, pardoned Professor Eydoux and sent him back to France.

SECRETS DENIED

THE PROFESSOR frankly admitted that he had made observations along the Yugoslav frontier at the request of a French military friend. He also confessed that he had supplied French authorities with notes
